BABY DOLL NAMES COP AS AFFINITY

HUSBAND SERVING A LIFE TERM

MRS. "BABY DOLL" BAKER

She accuses Policeman John McGovern of City Hall station of living with her as man and wife, while McGovern's wife and five children are in Dorchester.

REVEALS LETTERS OF LOVE

Slayer's Wife Says She Lived With Policeman McGovern as His Wife

Patrolman John T. McGovern, named as her affinity by Baby Doll Baker, today sent his resignation to Captain Perley Skillings.

John McGovern, patrolman attached to City Hall avenue station, today was accused by Baby Doll Baker of living with her while his wife and four children waited vainly for him in Dorchester.

She is the wife of Harry Baker, serving a life imprisonment in Charlestown for the murder of Dwight Chapman of Westboro.

The girl today told of her life as Mrs. John McGovern and as Mrs. Ray McDonald, which names she said were given by them when they registered at hotels near Scollay square, on Atlantic avenue and at rooming houses in West Newton and Cumberland streets.

SHOWS LOVE LETTERS.

Baby Doll today made public a batch of love letters which she said the cop penned at odd moments at the station house on police report blanks.

Usually these amorous outpourings were addressed to "Tiger Kitten," "Mama Darling" and "Norwegian Muggsy."

Once he wrote, according to "Baby Doll," that nothing gets by him except the wind, saying:

"Now here's where the self praise comes in. Please remember that you are blessed with, or cursed with maybe, a mug who does not consider himself so terribly dull or so dense as to be unable, at least, to follow close lightning, even if he can't catch up with it. Or, in a few words, nothing gets by me but the wind, and that wouldn't if I didn't want it to."

"PERT LITTLE LIPS."

Referring to a picture Baby Doll sent him, McGovern wrote, according to the woman:

"It does not do my wonderful little pal and sweetheart justice, but I know it is her, and I can look at these pert little lips and those smiling, playful and loving eyes, and that sturdy, plump form that looks so good in that nice clean uniform of my mamma's, and I can leave her and get inspiration from her, as to look at the picture and centre the mind on the girl I long to ring a ball of mental telepathy, and

25 OVERCOME AT CELLULOID BLAZE

Springfield, Jan. 8.—Twenty-five persons were overcome by acid fumes, five seriously, and two persons were injured in accidents as a fire that destroyed the large egg building at the plant of the Fiberloid Company at Indian Orchard.

The loss, according to unofficial estimate, may reach $60,000. The fire department was handicapped both by dense acid fumes and by a blinding snowstorm.

Edward Smith, a fireman, fell from the roof of the building, fracturing his skull. Fireman Edward Blaine was overcome. Charles Farnell, a carpenter, suffered severe burns. The fire started in paper sent to the building for acid treatment.

DEATH SENTENCE 12 DAYS AFTER CRIME

Newark, N. J., Jan. 8.—Showing no apparent emotion, William E. Battle, nineteen-year-old negro, was today sentenced to be electrocuted during the week beginning February 11 for the murder of Mrs. Eleanor L. Bridgeman. Mrs. Bridgeman's body was found in a preserve closet in the cellar of her home in Orange twelve days ago.

WALSKA'S HUSBAND HAS APPENDICITIS

Paris, Jan. 8.—Harold F. McCormick, Chicago multi-millionaire and husband of Ganna Walska, Polish grand opera singer, was operated upon here today for appendicitis. His condition was said to be satisfactory. Madame Walska was to have sailed for New York several days ago for an American tour, but cancelled her passage in order to nurse her husband.

It was said the operation had no connection with the operation performed upon McCormick in Chicago before he went to Paris to marry Mme. Walska.

$40,000 BAIL IN AUTO FRAUD CASE

Pleas of not guilty were entered today by five men arraigned before Judge Elias Bishop, charged with obtaining $51,000 from the Beacon Security Company under false pretenses. The alleged fraud was in connection with a "drive-your-own-auto" scheme, in which the defendants are alleged to have been implicated.

Hayward A. Johnson, twenty-two, of No. 435 Metropolitan avenue, Hyde Park, was held in $40,000 bail by Judge Bishop and the other four in $4,000 bail. The others were Henry L. Johnson, father of Hayward; John J. Kent, No. 233 River street, Hyde Park; Charles E. Gould, No. 24 Winslow street, Hyde Park; and Clifton H. Daniels, West Selden street, Roxbury.

It is expected that more arrests in this case will follow.

PLEA OF MOTHER REOPENS WARD CASE

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 8 (By International News Service).—Governor Smith has asked his legal advisor, James A. Parsons, and his pardon clerk, Owen L. Potter, to give him all the facts concerning the slaying of Clarence Peters, the marine, and the prosecution of Walter S. Ward, who admitted killing him. They are expected to confer with former District Attorney Weeks of Westchester County.

The Governor's action follows the appeal made in his Saturday by Peters' mother, who came to Albany from Haverhill, Mass., accompanied by an attorney, Frederick H. Magison.

They asked that an extraordinary grand jury be called to investigate the case and declared Ward should be tried by a jury.

Ward's admission that he shot Peters in self defense, they claim, is evidence enough to warrant his trial. Governor Smith said he is determined to know the inside of the case.

SCHOFIELD HUNTED IN HUB

Man Nurse Says He Believes Missing Treasurer Asked Him Way to New York

Is Thomas Schofield, missing treasurer of the Stacy, Adams Shoe Company, Brockton, in Boston?

The police think so and accordingly a search was started today of all hospitals and throught the South End.

This came about when Alonzo Grill, a nurse at City Hospital, told police of East Dedham street that today he saw a man closely answering the description of Schofield.

The man was of the same general appearance, also wearing a gray coat and clothing, staggered slightly and asked Grill the way to the Back Bay station.

This was at Massachusetts and Columbus avenues. As soon as he learned the way the stranger staggered off. He was seen last headed down Columbus avenue. Grill says that while he staggered this did not appear to be due to liquor, but illness.

SAME AGE AND WEIGHT.

The man who approached Grill was forty or forty-five, which is about Schofield's age. He weighed around 155 pounds, which was about the same weight as the missing treasurer, and was of the same height, 5 feet 8 inches. He wore a dark gray coat, as did Schofield, and a gray soft hat.

Several times during the month previous to his disappearance, Schofield told a friend that he "wished he was back in England."

This information was given to a Boston American reporter by a reliable person. According to the informant, Schofield has not been contented with his life here in Brockton since he returned from his visit to his family in Southport, England, last Summer.

Schofield has a father, one brother and three sisters, all of whom live in Southport.

LED HUMDRUM LIFE.

"I am sure that Tom Schofield is on his way across the Atlantic by this time," said the informant. "He led a very humdrum sort of a life here and had worked hard ever since he came to America in 1906. His trip abroad last Summer, when he spent some three months with his folks, seemed to make him dissatisfied with his lot here. He made a success of business, but his life was confined to a very steady grind."

Sir Basil Believes Schofield May Be Suicide

That Thomas Schofield, missing treasurer of the Stacy, Adams Shoe Company of Brockton, may be a suicide or victim of aphasia was the opinion expressed by Sir Basil Thompson, former head of Scotland Yard in a discussion of the case while visiting Mayor Curley today.

Sir Basil asked if Schofield's funds were intact and his home life happy. Informed that there was no clew from either source, he said he was under the impression it was a case of suicide or aphasia.

"Bill," he said, "sometimes a man says his home life is not what it should be, when it is not.

"I know of a case like this one, as it is explained to me of a young girl who disappeared from her home in London. She entered the woods and her body was discovered some time later. On her clothing was a suicide note."

Sir Basil was tendered a banquet at the Harvard Club at noon and tonight will lecture in Symphony Hall.

WOMAN SLAYER GIVES UP HOPE

London, Jan. 8 (By International News Service).—Mrs. Edith Thompson and Frederick Bywaters, under sentence to be hanged tomorrow for the murder of the woman's husband, gave up their last hope this afternoon. They received their relatives in their cells in Halloway and Pentonville prisons for the final farewell.

LOGAN AND FORBES CLASH

Another Verbal Row Develops at the Hearing in Dr. Brides Case

Another verbal row today featured the hearing of Dr. Arthur F. Brides, suspended manager of the Boston district of the Veterans' Bureau, who is being tried for removal from office.

General Edward L. Logan accused Colonel Forbes, national director of the bureau, with limiting him too strictly to the letter of the charges in his examination of witnesses.

Colonel Logan was trying to prove the charge that on Washington's Birthday last year Dr. Brides, in a speech to the Roxbury American Legion post, charged President Harding with being influenced by Wall Street in his stand on the bonus.

WITNESSES DISAGREE.

Frederick Craven, post commander, testified that Brides made this remark in the course of his address. Thomas A. Donnelly, past commander and a teacher at the High School of Commerce, was called to substantiate Craven.

Donnelly testified that the speech was not made on Washington's Birthday, but was made November, 1921.

Attorney John J. Fitzgerald, counsel for Dr. Brides, objected to the testimony, because the date in the charge was February 23, 1922, and Latest wrinkle on New Haven Railroad is to back an engine into South Station train shed, couple it to waiting cars, then repair the engine. E. G.—7:22 train Sunday night for Braintree. Passengers were all aboard. Engine was coupled on and "ready." Then they waited one hour and two minutes while the engine was repaired.

POSED AS DOCTOR, GETS 3 MONTHS

Fred F. H. LaPlante of No. 3 Pine street, Webster, was sentenced to serve three months in the House of Correction today by Judge Perrins in the Roxbury Court as the result of a complaint by Hyde Park mother that he pretended to be a doctor. The mother declared he guaranteed to cure her child of paralysis for $100, of which $23 was to be paid in advance. She said he did not return again after she gave him the first payment.

LaPlante was given a suspended sentence a few days ago in Salem for a similar offense.

BRITAIN ASKS TIME ON DEBT

Seeks Settlement With U. S. That Will Safeguard the Trade of Both Nations

Washington, Jan. 8 (By International News Service).—Stanley Baldwin, British Chancellor of the Exchequer in a formal statement to the American Debt Funding Commission, today declared Great Britain will repay every cent of the $5,000,000,000 debt to the United States, but desires settlement upon terms that will produce the least possible disturbance in the trade relations between the two countries.

The British entered the conference with no definite proposal except suggestions which may be grouped to change the present Funding Law, enacted by Congress.

Ambassador Harvey's sudden return from London is said to have been to smoothe the way for an understanding.

In his argument today Chancellor Baldwin said:

"The social condition of the American working man, raised to its present level in some measure as a result of the war, is now the highest in the world, but if we are unable to purchase from you, if we are forced by stern necessity to economize still further, to buy from you only those things we must have and these in greatly reduced quantities.

"The American farmer, as well as the American working man, will feel the pinch. He likewise will be compelled to economize. He will have to do with less. He will be brought down to a lower standard of living.

"This debt is not a debt for dollars sent to Europe. The money was all expended here, most of it for cotton, wheat, food products and munitions of war. Every cent used for the purchase of these goods was spent in America; American labor received the wages; American capitalists the profits; the United States Treasury the taxation imposed on these profits.

"At the time these goods were bought we were associates in a great war. Out of $7,000,000,000 worth of goods bought after the United States came into the war, we paid for $3,000,000,000 worth, leaving $4,000,000,000 which were supplied on credit. Now, seeing that the debt is a debt for goods supplied, it would be natural to ask why not repay with goods?"

HE BUYS A STRAW HAT

The Boston American's International Bureau of Travel has led Mr. Justwed to make this unusual January purchase. It also has reserved steamship and railway accommodations for them twixt Boston and Florida, and hotel accommodations at the journey's end.

For this expert service no charge is made. The office is in the American building, fifth floor. A 'phone call will start things going.

TWO LOST IN WRECK OF BOOZE SHIP

It was learned today that two men were drowned in the rum-running sloop which went ashore at the foot of Marshfield Hill, near Scituate, Saturday. A boy who was in the rigging of the little vessel until 4 a. m. Sunday, when he was brought ashore, was sent to St. John's, N. F., by a Boston bootlegger to whom the ship's cargo was consigned. The sloop was bound for Scituate, where the cargo was to have been put on motor trucks, but missed the entrance of the harbor in the snow storm.

CLEANING UP RHODE ISLAND GAMBLERS

Providence, Jan. 8.—The new attorney-general, Herbert L. Carpenter, today ordered Town Sergeant George S. Hill to close up the "pool room" of Thomas F. Moran at Marieville, which is alleged to have been conducted as a gambling establishment. Two places were closed last week, in Warren and Bristol, as part of the campaign of the new Democratic administration to clean up gambling.

ROW OVER HARDING 'CHARGES'

not November , 1921, and Colonel Forbes sustained his objection.

General Logan then made a violent protest and refused to question the witness further.

"I have noticed since the beginning of the hearing that I have been held down to the letter of the charges, despite the fact that you are here to make an investigation of conditions," Logan said.

"Yes, I am here to make an investigation," Forbes replied, "and if you won't question the witness I will." He then proceeded to question Donnelly about the alleged remarks about President Harding.

General Logan failed in an effort to prove that Dr. Brides arrived at the Training School on Commonwealth avenue intoxicated on August 17, as charged.

Thomas J. Dwyer, night watchman at the school, testified that Dr. Brides arrived there shortly before midnight and operated the automatic elevator. He said Brides was not drunk.

Miss Margaret Bowen, a nurse, and Colonel Harry Shanton of the United States Secret Service also testified. He has been here for some time investigating the charges.

ROBBERY OF STORE FOILED, YOUTH HELD

Following an attempted burglary of the provision store of Cochrane & Stinets in West Newton, Patrolman James Gaquin of the Newton police arrested Edward Bland, 19 years old, at the point of his revolver.

Bland was caught crouching behind a barrel in the rear of the store. He lives at No. 118 Elm street, West Newton.

A series of petty robberies of Newton stores have been made during the last two weeks. Patrolman Gaquin heard a noise in the rear of the provision store and on investigating saw that the rear window of the store had been partly forced. Then he observed Bland, who is charged with attempted breaking and entering.

BEAUTY HELD AFTER STORY OF ATTACK

June MacNevin, pretty New York girl, who claims she was attacked by two Lynn men after they had rescued her from a snowbank in Lynn, was held by the Lynn police today as a material witness.

Miss MacNevin told the police she jumped from an automobile in Lynn when three men in the car attempted to attack her. She accused Elmer M. Dunham and Edward Fox, two Lynn men, of attacking her in Dunham's home.

She told the police Fox tore her clothes and that Dunham attacked her. On her statement the two men were arrested. They denied the girl's charges.

The police were informed of the incident more than twelve hours after it happened. Then, acting on a report from two men, the pair arrested, who declared they had rescued her from the snow, several officers went to Dunham's house, and found the girl's unclothed, unconscious body.

She was rushed to the hospital.

Since the death of her parents, the girl told the police, she has been living in Hartford, Ct. She started auto from that city with three men, one of whom, a Hartford garage proprietor, she knows well, she said. They drove to Cambridge and had dinner, and then started back for Hartford, she declared.

After riding for hours, "all over Massachusetts," according to the girl, the machine passed through Lynn. She recognized the city by signs, she asserted. Arrived at a point in Vine street, she said, the men tried to attack her. She battled for a moment, then pushed open a near door of the car and jumped.

ACQUIT YOUTH OF ATTACKING "BRIDE" OF 14

The troubles of a fourteen-year-old girl, who "believed she was married," and her seventeen-year-old supposed husband were aired in Waltham Court today, when Frank Maravito of No. 106 Central street, Waltham was charged by Sadie Berte, who thought she was his wife, with non-support and assault and battery.

The girl signed herself Sadie Maravito, but it developed that her real name is Sadie Berte. She lived at No. 22 Linwood street, Somerville.

The girl proudly produced a marriage license, when the court asked for proof of her marriage, and was amazed when it was explained that a certificate and not a license was needed.

She said she and Frank had been keeping company for about a year. On November 17 they went to the Waltham city clerk and took out a marriage license. After that formality, she said, she considered herself a "married woman," and went to live with her supposed husband's mother and stepfather, Louis Argonti.

Sadie charged that Frank had never given her any money except once, the day before New Years. Then he gave her $1.50 for a pair of shoes. An hour later, however, she said, he demanded the money back. On her refusal to give it up, she claimed, he grabbed her around the throat, and almost choked her.

Sadie then left and returned to her own home.

Maravito denied he had struck the girl and explained that they were just having a "little friendly tussle."

Both charges against him were dismissed.

Strike of 100,000 Textile Workers in New England Threatened

Demand for 29 Per Cent. Wage Increase Will Be Decided by Leaders in Fall River Conference Tomorrow.

By CHARLES O. POWER.

Fall River, Jan. 8.—Will there be a general strike of the textile operatives of New England this Winter?

Will more than 100,000 men and women of the cotton mills be called out?

The decision on these questions of vital importance to the textile industry and the general welfare of the New England community will be indicated by the action of national textile labor leaders in this city today or tomorrow.

The big point to be discussed and decided by the national executive council of the United Textile Workers of America, at the special conference to be held here, is how a demand for an increase of 29 per cent. in wages for textile workers of New England mills best could be enforced.

"It is most important that we settle this question without unnecessary delay and determine the ways and means of doing it," says International President Thomas F. McMahon. "The wages of the workers were reduced 22½ per cent. in 1920, and there have been downward readjustments since then in many instances.

"We accepted the reduction in 1920 believing that it was a post-war arrangement that was demanded by a reduced volume of business, in keeping with the falling off from war time conditions in the industry. We were trying to be fair with the manufacturers and accepted their representations of changed trade conditions in good faith.

IMPOSED ON WORKERS

"But we have been imposed upon. Business has not been so bad as they pictured. They have continued to pay big cash dividends and to grow luscious melons of stock dividends. They have imposed extra wage reductions, but to some extent, have been obliged to restore them in order to secure operatives to meet the demands of production. They have tried to increase hours and have been successful in this respect in too many instances. In our opinion, the limit of their greed has been reached.

"An increase of 29 percent. all along the line would merely offset the wage reductions since 1920. Is this the time to enforce the demand? Or, would it be better to concentrate our energies and our resources upon the fight for the 48-hour week in the legislatures of New Hampshire and Rhode Island? Or, can we take on both pieces of work and do them thoroughly? These are the most important questions for the council to consider and decide.

GOLDEN HONORED.

"Of course, we cannot afford to slight the 48-hour week question in the two States. That fight must be pressed with vigor. It is my personal opinion that we cannot afford to slight the wage question any longer, either."

President McMahon will preside over the conferences. The sentimental feature of today's program is the unveiling of the John Golden monument in St. Patrick's Cemetery. Mr. Golden was a resident of this city and for years the national leader of the United Textile Workers of America. Mr. McMahon, his successor, was second in command to Mr. Golden and associated with him intimately in the upbuilding of the organization.

No one knew the value of the efforts of Mr. Golden for organized labor or his personal virtues better than Mr. McMahon, and he beautifully spoke feelingly in delivering the eulogy at the unveiling. The monument was ordered and paid for by the national officers and organizers of the textile workers who worked under the direction of Mr. Golden.

NATION-WIDE CONCLAVE.

Besides President McMahon, the other national officers present and sitting with the council are Frank McCosky of Philadelphia, international first vice-president, James Starr of Patterson, N. J., international second vice-president, and Sara A. Conboy of New York, formerly of Boston, international secretary-treasurer.

The members of the executive council on hand are John H. Powers of Pawtucket, R. I., Arthur McDonnell of Philadelphia, John Manley of Lowell, Dennis M. Fleming of Manchester, N. H., Lewis Ludwig of Pompton Lakes, N. J., Tobias Hall of Philadelphia, Luther M. Barnhardt of Concord, N. C., George Hayes of Paterson, N. J., and William Kenyon of Cohoes, N. Y.

Every national organizer in the country will be here and make a detailed report to the council of his work. In this way every section of the country will be canvassed and the entire textile situation discussed. After each organizer has been heard there will be a general discussion in which all will participate.

AMOSKEAG FEATURES.

One of the most interesting contributions to the conference will be the reports on the New Hampshire strikes by Vice-President Starr and Organizers Horace Riviere and Joseph White. They will tell of the various settlements with individuals and corporations, with special reference, of course to the great fight in Manchester; how Exeter settled on the 48-hour basis and Newmarket on the $1; how wage restorations were won in some centres, but fights for hour restorations lost in others, and how the Amoskeag company indicated to Rt. Rev. George Albert Guertin, bishop of Manchester, that it would give friendly consideration to peace terms proposed by him and then curtly rejected them, leaving no other alternative but to call off the strike temporarily.

It will be made clear by those who tell of the New Hampshire struggle of 10 months that the mass meetings of the strikers and the speeches of their leaders were the chief instrumentalities in the victory of the Democrats, who made their advance in the State election under the banner of the 48-hour week for women and minors.

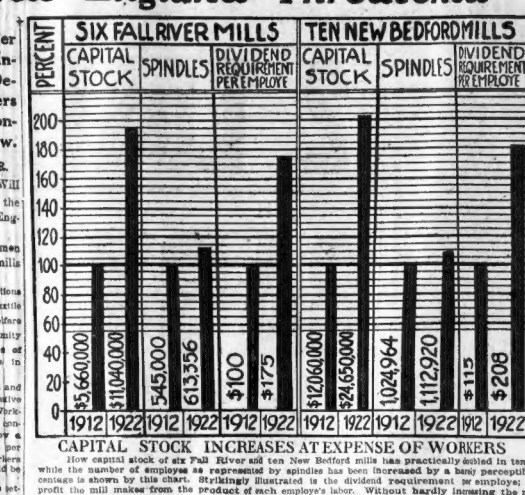
DOFFERS READY TO STRIKE.

They will point out that the new Governor has made good his promise to the people that he would urge the enactment of a 48-hour law, and indeed, has gone beyond his promise by declaring in his inaugural message that the passage of such a law is a clear mandate from the people of the State.

If the Council decides to undertake a campaign for a 29-per cent. increase in wages it will be started in Fall River and New Bedford.

Harry Etthough, an organizer in the Southern States, will bring to the Council the latest news from his section with suggestions relative to the sentiment for another fight for a shorter work week in the Southern mills.

The doffers in the Fall River cotton mills are all set and "rarin'" to go on strike for more pay. The executive council will give their case immediate consideration.



CAPITAL STOCK INCREASES AT EXPENSE OF WORKERS

How capital stock of six Fall River and ten New Bedford mills has practically doubled in ten years, while the number of employes as represented by spindles has been increased by a barely perceptible percentage is shown by this chart. Strikingly illustrated is the dividend requirement per employe; or the profit the mill makes from the product of each employe's labor. Without hardly increasing the number of employes in ten years, the profit on each worker has been increased in the New Bedford group from $115 to $208.

GEM THIEVES ON THE JOB FOR SIX MONTHS

New York, Jan. 8.—Frank B. Carman, who has been held for several days in connection with the $500,000 gem robbery from Mrs. Irene Mannock Schoolikopf, was discharged today.

Magistrate Francis X. McQuade, in discharging Carman, acted on a motion made by Chief Assistant District Attorney Pecora who said that the prisoner had agreed to tell him all the details of the robbery.

Carman, a former actor, who had been Mrs. Schoolikopf's host on New Year's Eve in an apartment on West Fifty-second street, had been held without bail on a short affidavit charging suspicion of having acted in concert with others in robbing his wealthy guest in a suite below his.

SIX MONTHS ON JOB.

The police, who believe that three men were involved in the robbery and that they comprised the same band who robbed Mrs. Charlotte King Palmer of $300,000 worth of jewelry in 1920, are sending to the police of every city in the United States and Canada photographs and fingerprints of a trio whose pictures in the Rogues Gallery have been identified by a half dozen persons as those of the men suspected in the Schoolikopf case.

The authorities, who have chalked up the crime to a gang of Broadway parasites preying on rich women habitues of cabarets and lobster palaces, expressed belief that three suspects spent nearly six months planning the Schoolikopf robbery, making two trips to Buffalo while keeping her under close watch.

It is believed that they lived for a time near Carman's quarters, finally moved into the same apartment house, eventually made his acquaintance and then obtained an introduction to their victim.

"DAPPER DAN" IN IT.

The name of the notorious "Dapper Dan" Collins, ex-convict and Tenderloin habitue, was brought in to the case today. Police refused to say whether or not one of the three pictures identified in the rogue's gallery was that of the much-sought gang leader.

RIVAL GAVE UP $40,000 SAYS HUSBAND

Augusta, Me., Jan. 8.—Ralph H. Dunton, an automobile dealer, today testified in Superior Court that the late John S. Hyde, millionaire shipbuilder, gave him $40,000 bonds because Hyde had spent a night with Mrs. Dunton in a Portland hotel.

This testimony was given during a hearing on a motion for a bill in equity filed by Mrs. Luella Dunton to compell her husband to make an accounting of $5,000 worth of bonds.

She declared that Mr. Hyde gave her $75,000 in bonds at one time and paid her $200 monthly and gave her a diamond and furs.

CUT EARS OFF DOG; OWNER IS FINED $25

Joseph Raino, of No. 89 Edwards Court, Lynn, disliked long ears on his Boston Terrier, and, accordingly, it was alleged, he cut them off. As result he was fined $25 by Judge Reeve in Lynn District Court today. An agent of the Massachusetts Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals appeared as complainant.

SNOW, RAIN AND THEN SLUSH EVERYWHERE

A snappy young snow storm which hit Boston shortly after breakfast time today changed at midday to rain, and that meant buckets of slush.

While the letup in the snow was a relief to hampered steam and trolley transportation, the rain made matters as bad as possible for pedestrians.

HALTED SNOW GANGS.

Before the street cleaning forces, which had been wrestling with the snowfall, were able to get a good start the rain converted what had fallen into a slushy mess ankle deep on some downtown streets.

Through this melting mixture automobiles and other vehicles slithered and skidded and spattered, especially the latter.

Meanwhile, the weather man, who certainly shakes a mean forecast these days, prophesied more snow for tomorrow, maybe. If not snow, then rain. The driving storm of the first part of the day was another problem for railroad and railway managements, especially on top of the snow fights they have been having since Christmas week.

Transportation was set back heavily, especially in the open country districts. Trains were late. Trolley service was hampered.

Shipping kept to shelter as much as possible.

MORE SNOW TOMORROW.

The Weather Man expects today's storm to let up tonight, but to be followed by more snow or rain tomorrow.

He hints, too, at floods from melting snow if higher temperature comes. This forecast for Boston and vicinity is:

"Cloudy, generally fair tonight. Tuesday unsettled, probably followed by rain or snow. Rising in the temperature. Strong northeast winds, diminishing."

The new storm, added to the accumulations of snow from the last storms, made matters more and more serious in country districts already from twelve to twenty inches deep, with drifts two or more feet piled up as more exposed places.

ALL CREWS OUT.

The Boston Elevated and the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway systems sent out all their snow-fighting forces, men, ploughs, horses and teams, in vigorous effort to keep lines and cars running to schedule.

Early reports from New Haven Railroad arrivals at the South Station showed the storm was getting in its field against the service.

Gale Causes Great Damage in Denver

Denver, Col., Jan. 8. (By International News Service).—A gale blowing sixty-five to seventy miles an hour set a record last night probably unequalled in Denver for destruction. Streets were strewn with debris and many lives imperilled as chimneys, poles and large signs fell. Communication with surrounding towns was cut off.

Three hundred motorists were stalled between Denver and Golden. Fire and police apparatus were constantly on the move. No loss of life has been reported. However, damage to property will run into hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Springfield Schools Shut; Business Hurt by Storm

Springfield, Jan. 8.—Schools were closed, trolley and steam railroad transportation in western Massachusetts slowed up and retail business reduced almost to a standstill by a storm of blizzard proportions today. Driven by an easterly wind, the snow drifted badly.

MALDEN MAN HELD IN N. Y. FOR DESERTION

Truth That Was Needed Lloyd George Supplies It
Europe's Insanity Bread to War Dogs

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1923, Star Co.

WHAT CAUSES war? You read Lloyd George's answer in his article yesterday. He says wars start, as street fights start, because one nation or one man is convinced that he can beat another. If they are uncertain about it, the fight does not start.

A man with big muscles trained to prize fighting is eager for a fight, and so a nation with a great army trained for battle.

FORTUNATELY ALL Europe and the thinking part of America will read what Lloyd George said. Here it is condensed:

"Marshal Foch once told me that he considered the German army of 1914 the finest army the world ever saw in numbers, organization, training and equipment. What set that army in motion?"

IT WAS not the assassination of the Royal Archduke that started the war, says Lloyd George, and it was not the Kaiser—he was merely pushed along by the military machine. It was the belief of the German high officials that they could beat the world, the fact that Germany's army, as Foch said, was "the finest the world ever saw," that started the war.

"WERE IT not that the German army was more perfect and more potent than either the French or Russian army—were it not that every German officer was convinced that the German military machine was superior to all its rivals—there would have been no war, whatever Emperors, diplomatists or statesmen said, thought or intended.

"A sense of overpowering force behind national aims is a constant incitement to ruthlessness, to greed and to ambitious patriotism."

LLOYD GEORGE talks from behind the scenes. He knows what the facts are, and knew what they were when he was promising England that the Kaiser-cousin of the English King should be hanged by the neck. He never meant the hanging—which would not have looked well in the British royal family history. He speaks of the Kings and Emperors as "terror stricken dummies," powerless and "driven onward relentlessly by military organizations."

MORE WARS are coming, says Lloyd George, unless Europe disarms, and he means France especially, and says so. He shows the gigantic size of her army, greater than it ever was and more expensive. Its real cost is concealed from the French people by the fact that Germany has been forced to support part of it stationed in Germany. He warns also against Poland's great army. This Europe should heed, and America also, for it is true.

"NAVIES ARE essentially defensive weapons. No capital in the world can be captured by navies alone, and no country can be annexed or invaded by a fleet."

That is true now, and it was true, when America was told that she would soon be swallowed up by Germany, and when fools here believed it, and grafting "patriots," busy robbing the government, pretended to believe it. The United States was never in

BALKS FUTURE 'GORDON CASES'

Get Two in Cambridge Killing

TO STOP 'GORDON CASES'

Pastor-Legislator Introduces a Bill to Stop "Railroading" of Patients Into Asylums

The first definite legislation arising from illegal commitment of Dorothy Gordon to the McLean Asylum in Waverley was proposed to the House of Representatives today by Rev. Roland D. Sawyer, Congregational clergyman and member of the Legislature from Ware.

Aroused by what he himself found in a personal investigation of Dorothy's case, Mr. Sawyer has filed a bill in which it is provided that the State Commissioner of Mental Diseases shall make a mental examination of every person who, in the future, become a "voluntary patient" in any insane asylum in this State.

Mr. Sawyer's bill is surrounded with safeguards intended to protect the helpless from conditions which he found in the Gordon case.

MUST EXAMINE PATIENTS.

It provides that when any person applies for commitment as a voluntary patient, the superintendent of the hospital shall at once make a complete record of the patient, together with a statement from the attending physician that the applicant was "mentally competent to sign such application."

The superintendent of any private hospital is ordered by this proposed law to forward "by personal messenger or by registered mail" this record of the patient to the State commissioner of mental diseases "within twenty-four hours of the receipt of the voluntary patient."

The next section of the bill says:

"And the commissioner shall forthwith cause to be made an examination of the patient, and shall enter the record of his findings with the record submitted by the superintendent or manager of the private institution."

PROTECTS THE HELPLESS.

It is ordered that the commissioner shall keep a separate record of every voluntary patient and that the records shall, at all times, be open to public officials and relatives and accredited friends of patients.

Mr. Sawyer's bill orders that if the commissioner finds evidence or has reason to believe that the patient was improperly committed, he shall at once furnish his evidence and report his belief to the Attorney-General.

The Attorney-General is then ordered to take steps to release the patient and punish all responsible for the illegal commitment.

If it is found that the patient was insane, and, therefore, incompetent to have signed the application for voluntary commitment, the Attorney-General is ordered to secure a legal commitment to the patient to some suitable institution.

As a result of his investigation of the Gordon case, Mr. Sawyer demanded an investigation by the State. Following Mr. Sawyer's own story of his investigation, published exclusively in the Boston American, Dr. George M. Kline, State Commissioner of Mental Diseases, began a personal inquiry into Dorothy's commitment.

FRENCH TO OCCUPY ESSEN

Force Invading Germany to Be Aided by Belgians and Italians

Paris, Jan. 8 (By the Associated Press).—The occupation of Essen by a small French force, accompanying engineers and customs officers, is now slated for Thursday morning, it was stated on good authority today.

Belgian and Italian engineers and technical experts will accompany the French, but only the Belgians, it is understood, will contribute to the force of occupation.

Premier Poincare will inform Parliament on Thursday regarding his policy toward the Ruhr district. This was decided upon at today's council of ministers.

FRANCE "IN EARNEST."

"France is going just far enough to show Germany she is in earnest," it was said in official circles.

Premier Poincare does not intend to mobilize a single soldier in addition to the regular forces under arms nor call out a single additional railroad man to effect the operation, it was declared.

It seemed certain the Reparations Commission would vote Germany in voluntary default on coal deliveries for last year, after the final hearing of the German experts which was set for three o'clock this afternoon.

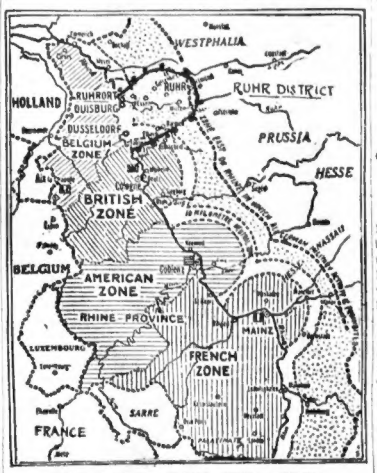
The appearance of the Germans was considered a mere formality. The question will be decided, it is forecast, by the affirmative votes of France, Belgium, and Italy, with Sir John Bradbury, the British member, probably abstaining from voting.

TO HEAR U. S. ENVOY.

It is considered probable Roland W. Boyden, American representative with the Reparations Commission, will have something to say before the vote is taken. Mr. Boyden, it is believed, will point out that while the default of Germany is clear, the circumstances were such as should encourage the commission to accompany its decision with a statement of facts.

Mr. Boyden, it is also thought, holds the opinion that the facts show Germany is unable to complete the remaining 20 per cent. of her deliveries because of shortage at home and that her punishment, therefore, should be tempered to fit the circumstances.

FRENCH PLAN TO SEIZE RICH COAL FIELDS



TERRITORY ALONG THE RHINE

The Ruhr basin, which is now the centre of world's interest, contains Germany's richest coal fields. It lies at the northern end of the great Rhineland industrial belt. The coal fields flank the Ruhr River, which flows into the Rhine at Ruhrort, fifteen miles south of Wesel. This stream is 150 miles long and furnishes valuable water transport for coal and coke to the German mills and factories at Essen. Essen, the seat of the great Krupp works, formerly the chief source of Germany's war supplies, lies on the western fringe of the Ruhr district.

CAUGHT IN THRILLING CHASE

One Suspect Leaps 20 Feet From Window to Escape Police

Antonio Prato and Guiseppe Marrazza, wanted by the Cambridge police in connection with the murder last October of Bruno Montagno of Providence, were captured today in Brooklyn, N. Y.

Coincident with the arrests Serafina Guiliano appeared in Middlesex County Superior Court, East Cambridge, and pleaded not guilty to an indictment charging him with being an accessory after the fact in connection with the crime. He was held in $500 bonds.

The arrests in Brooklyn were preceded by a thrilling chase in which Marrazza leaped twenty feet from the window of a house.

The murder of Montagno, known as the "wheelbarrow murder," took place Oct. 28, 1922, in the home of Marrazza. Montagna's body was carted three blocks in a wheelbarrow and dumped into a pond.

Guiliano and Prato were recently indicted by the Grand Jury.

Dominick Procopio, also alleged to be connected with the crime, was captured a few days ago in Philadelphia.

Police allege Montagno was murdered in revenge for testimony he gave against a friend of Marrazza and Prato in a Providence, R. I. stabbing case.

'EVE,' BACK IN HUB, NAMES 'OTHER WOMEN'

Anna Logue, Boston actress and sister of Grace Logue, who died at Woburn a year ago under mysterious circumstances, has been mentioned with other young Boston women in the estrangement between Mr. and Mrs. Carl Sutter, the "Adam" and "Eve" of the Maine woods.

"Eve" has returned to Boston from commenced divorce proceedings.

Miss Logue, who at one time was on the same vaudeville bill with Sutter, said that her only association with him was in a purely business manner.

"I met the Sutters three years ago," she said, "and I liked her very much. The only time I was associated with her husband was when we worked together in a Federal drug investigation."

Mrs. Sutter says she is through with men forever. "After all I went through in the Maine Woods last Summer and all my struggle to help him in his vaudeville work, my only reward has been slander and cruelty," she declared.

Meanwhile, "Prince" Lazuli, who insists that he is the innocent victim of circumstances, is in Aroostook County jail at Houlton, Me., on the complaint of Mrs. Lilley of Bangor, Maine.

GUARDS STILL PATROL 'CROWN JEWEL' GRAVE

New York, Jan. 8.—Seven soldiers from Fort Hamilton today continued their lonely patrol of the National Cemetery, Brooklyn, in the neighborhood of the grave of Seaman Samuel Jones, in which, treasury agents say, some of the Russian crown jewels may have been hidden. The military guard has been maintained since Saturday. Lieutenant Ruschman, superintendent of the cemetery, said he was waiting for orders from Washington to have the grave opened.

GUNMEN HIRED TO MURDER TAGUE

Reports that threats were made on the life of Congressman Peter F. Tague during the last congressional election and that he was warned four gunmen were to be brought from New York to kill him were confirmed today by Superintendent of Police Michael H. Crowley.

"My information was to the effect that four gunmen were in Boston to get Tague," said Superintendent Crowley. "They were not merely going to assault him. They were going to shoot him.

"Experienced headquarters men were assigned to act as body guard to Congressman Tague, and the divisions in which he spoke were instructed to have details accompany him.

"I cannot reveal the name or the source of my information, but at the time we received it we acted on it to prevent any such occurrence," declared Superintendent Crowley.

Mrs. Tague knew of the threats. She received abusive telephone calls, and, when the campaign was over, collapsed. Congressman Tague was advised by his family physician to remove the telephone from his house, and did so.

BRITISH EXPORTS TO U. S. GAIN $119,647,000

Washington, Jan. 8.—Invoiced exports from the United Kingdom to the United States during 1922 amounted to $559,716,884, or a gain of 20 per cent. over 1921, according to figures made public today by the Department of Commerce. The 1922 gain over the previous year computed at current rates of exchange was $119,647,109.

FIND BAY STATE ROAD HOSPITAL ANNOYS JUDGE

A report which finds that sounds, sights and smells from the Riverbank Hospital, Bay State road, are annoying and offensive to Judge William J. Prest of the Suffolk County Probate Court was filed in the Supreme Court today by Arthur H. Wellman, who as master heard the evidence in a bill in equity brought by Judge Prest asking that Mary J. Ross be restrained from maintaining the hospital.

The bill was filed by Judge Prest on August 18, 1922. He lives at No. 185 Bay State road, next door to the hospital. He asked for an injunction on the grounds that the hospital is a private nuisance and a violation of restrictions imposed upon land bordering on Bay State road, that no buildings other than dwelling houses and clubs should be erected there.

In his report Master Wellman stated: "I find that frequently some of the sounds, sights and smells have been extremely annoying, disturbing and offensive to the petitioner and his family, and has caused them great discomfort and disturbed the rest of the petitioner and his family and have rendered his house less desirable as a residence than it otherwise would have been."

Next move will be to ask to have report confirmed and injunction issued.

MOB ATTACKS COAL TRAIN AT HARTFORD

Hartford, Ct., Jan. 8.—The largest coal yards in the city were under guard today by the city police following requests for protection from a majority of Hartford's coal dealers.

Excited crowds gathered in the yards and in front of coal offices over the week-end and police guards were sent to the scenes when disorder began to develop.

Coal dealers were threatened and for hours crowds pushed against coal cars which had just arrived and begged for coal.

In some cases men and woman secured small supplies which they took away on sleds. At police headquarters it was said efforts were being made to prevent some of the excited groups from leading raids on coal trains.

RESCUE 4 AS COAL BARGE GOES ASHORE

Coast guardsmen today rescued four men from the coal barge Tennessee after she had struck on Lewis' Point, near Block Rock, R. I.

The barge broke loose from a tow going to the eastward.

The schooner Snetind, which was in distress off Peaked Hill Bars, was towed to a safe anchorage in Provincetown harbor by the coast guard cutter Tampa. The Snetind, loaded with coal, is bound for Boston.

In an effort to identify the fifty-foot sloop Sarsarco, which foundered on the roof of Third Cliff at Scituate, were unavailing today. Authorities are convinced she had been used for rum-running.

Broken whiskey bottles and cases were found along the shore. The vessel is rapidly going to pieces.

FIGHTS MOVE TO DEPORT HIS COOK

Muskegon, Mich., Jan. 8.—Eugene Meurer, millionaire paper manufacturer, was planning today to fight threatened deportation proceedings which would deprive him again of his cook, Miss Margaret Wasserman, forty-two years old.

Miss Wasserman, whose culinary talents Meurer declared were essential to his health, was arrested by immigration authorities, who allege she entered the United States last year in violation of the Federal statutes.

The presence of Miss Wasserman in the Meurer home was the cause of a controversy culminating in a divorce. In a property settlement Meurer gave his wife $50,000 and Miss Wasserman $40,000 as a reward for her services.

Demands France Make Rhineland Free Republic

Paris, Jan. 8 (By International News Service).—The French Geographic Society today adopted a resolution urging France to "free the German Rhineland from Prussia and annex the Saar Basin." The Rhineland exploitation plan of M. Dariac, chairman of the Chamber of Deputies Finance Committee calls for the creating of a separate republic in the Rhineland under French protection.

NEGROES HIDE IN WOODS FROM MOB

Rosewood, Fla., Jan. 8.—Rosewood is quiet today following the racial disturbances of the past few days, in which seven persons were killed, as the result of a search by officers and citizen posses for Jesse Hunter, negro, wanted for an alleged attack on a young white woman at Sumner last Monday. Hunter still is at large.

Officers believe that the burning Sunday afternoon of twelve houses, all that was left of the negro quarter at Rosewood, marks the end of the smoke shadow.

STRANDED SCHOONER ESCAPES UNDAMAGED

Machiasport, Me., Jan. 8.—The three-masted schooner, Hiram D. McLean, which grounded on the larger of the Libby Islands yesterday, floated today without assistance and probably without serious damage. She came into port and anchored.

The accident happened during a northeast snow storm. The schooner was bound from Windsor, N. S., to New Rochelle, N. Y., with a cargo of lumber.

BOSTON WOMEN SOLD FOR "GLASS OF HOOCH," SAYS LAWSON

BRANDS CITY HUB OF HELL

Evangelist Says Ministers Should Advocate Sale of Good Liquor

East Orange, N. J., Jan. 8.—"Boston is a rotten sink of iniquity, where men and women both are sold for the price of a glass of hooch." This was the statement of the Rev. George H. Lawson, pastor of the People's Evangelistic Church here, in a sermon having for its text "Little Wine for Your Stomach's Sake."

Rev. George H. Lawson.

Mr. Lawson recently returned from Boston, where he held a series of meetings.

Announcing that he proposes to begin a "clean up" campaign in this state, he continued:

"I went to Boston to clean up there, but I got no co-operation from the police officials.

"In Boston I took sides with the Catholics and the Jews and the next day I received a threatening letter from the Ku Klux Klan. That night, when I went to hold a meeting, I found that the place had been burned down.

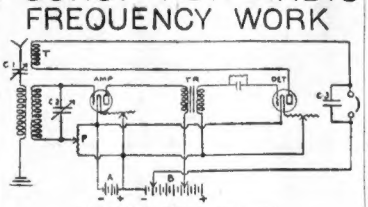
"I couldn't find a sober man in Boston. New York is heaven compared to Boston. Boston is the hub of hell."

The minister said his idea was "to rid New Jersey of hootch, not liquor. The eighteenth amendment should be done away with. Men must have rum, but give them good rum, not the kind of stuff they hand out now, made up principally from benzine turpentine or heroin, he declared.

"We are now at a point in the United States where we are classed as drunken wharf rats. The Volstead act is a failure and it is time that the ministers of this country advocated good stuff. Better 'wine, woman and song' than the present day hooch. Let them sell good stuff."

The Rev. Mr. Lawson announced he had won a second "prayer bride." He said she will be Miss Nita A. Miller, "general delivery." Fond Du Lac, Wis.

HOOKUP FOR RADIO FREQUENCY WORK



REGENERATIVE CIRCUIT

An unusually good receiver for long distance reception, including one stage of radio-frequency amplification and a regenerative detector is shown above. A radio-frequency amplifying transformer (TD) is used to couple the two circuits. L1 and L2 are the coupling coils, which may be honeycomb coils of fifty turns apiece. In this case C1 and C2 may be variable condensers of .0005 maximum capacity. The tickler coil (T) may be a 35 turn honeycomb coupled to L2. C3 is an ordinary phone condenser. P is a potentiometer.

OF ARMIES Lloyd George says:

"But armies are grabbing machines. A transcendant army has always led to aggression. No country can resist the lure of an easy triumph paraded before its eyes for two successive generations. To ensure peace on earth nations must disarm their striking forces. Without disarmament peace treaties and covenants are of no avail."

CONCERNING EUROPE'S present frightful condition of wasteful militarism Lloyd George writes with a frankness that will not please his former associates in the making of the Versailles treaty. Read these bits of his statement.

"There are more men under arms in Europe today than in 1913-14, with none of the excuses that could be pleaded in those days—Germany and Austria had built up great armaments because their frontiers were open to attack by two great military powers (France and Russia), who had engaged to pool their resources in the event of war. Those excuses (for war) no longer exist. The two great military empires of Central Europe have disappeared. Germany, which before the war had a peace establishment of 800,000 men and reserves running into millions, has today a total army of 100,000 men, one-third the size of the Polish army. Austria, which had a peace army of 620,000 men and a reserve of two or three millions of trained men, has today been reduced to a tiny force of 30,000 men."

LLOYD GEORGE, now able to speak plainly, with no office weighing upon him, says bluntly that he suspects France of plans for conquest, and in that this country is interested, for five thousand millions of our unpaid debts help to finance French militarism. Lloyd George says—remember—when you think of investing your money in foreign bonds:

"France has still an army of 734,000 men now under arms, with a trained reserve of two or three millions more. She is strengthening and developing her air force as if she feared or contemplated immediate invasion. In 1914 France had an air force of 400 aeroplanes. Today she has 1,152.

"But numbers signify little. The size, power and purpose of machines signify much. Amongst the 1,152 air machines of today will be found bombers of destructiveness such as was not dreamt of in 1914—a single bomb dropped from one of the new bombers contains more explosive material than one hundred of those carried by the old type. And the size of the machine and its bombs are growing year by year."

IN LLOYD GEORGE'S description of flying machines war this country might be interested.

We need never fear any fleet on the water, but fleets in the air, coming at night, hovering over half a dozen cities at once, with power to destroy them all in half an hour—that is a different story. The machine that could not go from Paris to Berlin between sunset and sunrise, with plenty of time to work in the dark after arrival, will soon have power to fly across the Atlantic or the Pacific TO US.

LLOYD GEORGE asks the question that is in every sane mind:

"Where is it to stop? And what is it all for? Where is the enemy? Where is the menace which demands such gigantic military developments? Not one of the neighbors of France has today a force which reaches one-fourth the figures of her formidable army. GERMANY NO LONGER AFFORDS A DECENT PRETEXT—Rumania alone, with a population of 15,000,000, has an army twice the size of that allowed by the treaty of Versailles to Germany, with her population of 60,000,000."

"EVERY LITTLE State bristles with guns to scare off invaders. No country in Europe pays its way except Britain, with her reduced army and navy—the other countries, even the smallest of them, by inflated loans and inflated currencies, contrive to maintain larger armies than Frederick the Great or the Grand Monarque, Louis XIV., ever commanded."

WAS IT not about time for the United States to bring back the army that has been stupidly kept in Germany, costing this nation one-quarter of a billion dollars a year, imposing on the broken down German people the task of feeding it? What greater stupidity was known than billeting that army there?

"THE OLD continent is with both hands throwing to the dogs of war bread that should feed its children," says Lloyd George.

DO YOU think we should send any of our "war dogs" to fight, or be fed, or shot over there? And don't you think it fortunate that the details well meaning, partly idiotic sentimentalists were not able to force this country into that League of Nations, with its results well described now by Lloyd George, who helped to create it?

TOO MUCH HEAT; 3 FLEE FROM HOME

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Fent and their child were driven into the snow early today by fire from an overheated chimney, which did $600 damage to the home at No. 430 Dorchester ave.

GOOD RECEIVER FOR DISTANCE RECEPTION

A receiver which has given unusually good service on long distance work is described in the accompanying diagram.

It includes a stage of radio-frequency amplification coupled to a regenerative detector circuit by means of a radio-frequency amplifying transformer.

The completed set has five major controls, but none of them are intricate. They include the coupler, two condensers, tickler and potentiometer.

Myers tubes are generally regarded as the best for radio-frequency amplification as they have a minimum of internal capacity effects, and link up nicely with the average R. F. amplifying transformer. The detector tube may be either a Myers, a UV-200, or a WD-11.

(A receiver which uses no A battery, but takes ordinary house lighting current for the tube filaments will be described tomorrow.)

AUTO DEALER DROPS DEAD ON STREET

Rudolph R. Ross, one of Boston's most widely known automobile dealers, was stricken with heart disease and dropped at the side of his five - year - old daughter Ruth, at Beacon and Pleasant streets, Brookline.

Rudolph R. Ross

The child's crying attracted Patrolman Cunniff, who carried the victim to the office of Dr. Joseph T. Low at No. 14 Pleasant street. Mr. Ross was pronounced dead by Medical Examiner Fred L. Hayes.

With his little girl, Mr. Ross was returning to his home, No. 24 Pleasant street, after a morning of coasting, when he succumbed to the heart attack.

He was born in New York, June 28, 1874, and was associated with the Packard and Peerless Automobile Companies, in the pioneer days of the business here.

WARNS AMERICA OF BOLSHEVISM

Warning his audience of business and social perils to be faced in the next few years, President George William Bentley of the George William Bentley Company, at a gathering of the sales forces at the City Club, said that only the coming generations "can hope to make America safe against Bolshevism and radical socialism."

George W. Bentley

"A salesman gains neither glory nor lasting profit by sticking the man to whom he sells," said A. H. Deute, sales manager of the Borden Sales Company, in the chief address. "He must teach the other to sell in turn and show him how to make a profit. That is service and that counts in the distributing business."

"Yes, darling, our stay together on your last visit, while wonderful, did seem altogether too short. That is because of the short day when your Daddy had to sleep in the day instead of being awake to entertain you. Better luck next time, my darling.

"You poor kid, how sorry I was when I went to work Monday night, when I thought of how my precious girl had to be hurried to get a bite to eat and catch the train.

"Just came back after pulling a duty call at 8 a. m. and it is about the time my angel is rubbing the sleep out of her eyes.

KISSING THE PICTURE.

"I have your picture with me, and I am kissing the picture in the absence of the original picture. Do I love my little mamma? Well, I'll say I do. And that reminds me that Kipling says in his memories of love, 'God made the wild flowers with all their fragrance for the poor.'

"So, therefore, I have at least one advantage in being poor. I have my wonderful, wild, wind-blown, sun-kissed Norwegian rose to love, cherish and amuse. And that is better than all the wealth in the world.

"So Miss B—— was worried for fear that you would miss me by taking the early train. She does not know what a wonderful girl you are, or how capable your every effort is, does she, dear?

"P. S.—Let us endeavor to so live that when we die, even the undertaker will be sorry, another of my wise cracks, pretty fair for a city Mug.

"All the kissing and loving that you can imagine goes with this letter right straight to you from my heart.

then I can read her every thought and desire, just as she can mine."

Some extracts from love notes she says she received from him are:

"Tiger Kitten"

"To hold you in my arms and smother you with my love"

"Wind-blown, sun-kissed rose."

"Beautiful little mamma of mine"

"With love, kisses and prayers."

"Oh, to wake you up with kisses and loving."

"Dear, sweet freckle-faced Muggsy."

"No kisses from you, but I send Muggsy."

"The bloomers are coming."

"Papa is pretty lonesome for his little red-head."

"Sun-kissed wild, beautiful darling."

Mrs. Margaret McGovern, the policeman's wife, today defended him at her home, No. 164 Hancock street, Dorchester, and declared everything a "frameup."

As she upheld her husband, their four children, likewise shouted their faith and in chorus cried: "We love our daddy. He is all right."

"It is a frameup," said Mrs. McGovern. "Why, every week he comes home and gives me his pay envelope. The money he got from doing extra detail work at Christmas time was given to me and he never even opened the envelope.

"He has never been unkind to me or the children. He never spoke of that girl except when she was arrested in connection with the murder. I don't believe a word of it and I will stay with him through all."

Don't Let That Cold Turn Into "Flu"

Rub on Good Old Musterole

That cold may turn into "Flu," Grippe or, even worse, Pneumonia, unless you take care of it at once.

Rub good old Musterole on the congested parts and see how quickly it brings relief.

Colds are merely congestion. Musterole, made from pure oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other simple ingredients, is a counter-irritant which stimulates circulation and helps break up the cold.

As effective as the mustard old mustard plaster, it does the work without the blister.

Just rub it on with your fingertips. You will feel a warm tingle as it enters the pores, then a cooling sensation that brings welcome relief. 35c and 65c, in jars and tubes.

'DIVINE SARAH' IS REPORTED AS 'BROKE'

Copyright, 1923, by International News Service.

Paris, Jan. 8.—Despite the millions in money which an admiring world has paid in tribute to her art, Mme. Sarah Bernhardt finds herself today in straightened financial circumstances.

In fact the "Divine Sarah," despite the enormous sums she has earned upon the stage, is broke."

Despite her illness Mme. Bernhardt feels she must return to her dramatic work at the earliest possible moment to pay off her debts, many of which were incurred through unfortunate investments by her son Lautrec.

It is learned from an authoritative source that Mme. Bernhardt is suffering from anemia. Friends have declared that she would never be able to return to the stage.

Members of her family and the doctors did not dare to tell Mme. Bernhardt of her real condition.

Instead, for purposes of keeping up her indomitable courage, they told out the prospect that she would be able to resume her career.

Sacha Guitry, author of the new play in which Mme. Bernhardt was to have had the leading role, plans financial relief for the actress.

Is Winter Time Your Backache Time?

Does Your Back Foretell Every Change in the Weather? Do You Feel Old and Stiff and Suffer Sharp, Rheumatic Pains? Then Look to Your Kidneys!

ARE winter months your backache months? Does every cold, chill or attack of grip leave you lame, achy and all worn out? Does your back throb and ache until it seems you just can't keep going another day?

Then look to your kidneys! Grip, colds and chills throw a heavy strain on the kidneys. They overload the blood with poisons and impurities that the kidneys have to filter off. The kidneys weaken under this rush of new work; become congested and inflamed.

It's little wonder, then, that every cold finds you suffering with torturing backache, rheumatic pains, headaches, dizziness and annoying bladder irregularities.

Don't wait! Delay may lead to serious or chronic kidney sickness. Realize that your kidneys have weakened in fighting the cold-created poisons and give them the help they need. Begin using Doan's Kidney Pills today. Doan's have helped thousands at such times and should help you. Ask your neighbor!

"Use Doan's," Say These Boston Folks:

CHARLES DAGLE, prop. of blacksmith shop, 161 Summer St., East Boston, says: "My kidneys didn't act properly and I believe it was caused from heavy lifting. I felt so tired and lame through my back and hips that when I bent over, I could hardly straighten again. I used Doan's Kidney Pills and they put my kidneys in a strong condition." (Statement given September 24, 1918.)

On July 14, 1923, Mr. Dagle said: Doan's cured me of kidney complaint and I recommend them to cure others."

MRS. SARAH SLATTER, 22 Clarendon St., says: "I suffered from backache and kidney disorder. When I stooped to pick up the dust pan a sharp pain caught me in the small of my back and I could hardly move. My kidneys acted irregularly and I felt so tired I could hardly get about. Everything seemed to be blue. A friend told me to try Doan's Kidney Pills and I bought a box at Liggett Co.'s Drug Store. I soon felt relieved and two boxes of Doan's cured me of all the symptoms."

MASONS JOIN FORCES IN NATIONAL FIGHT AGAINST DRUG EVIL

ORGANIZE FOR WAR TO FINISH

Demand Stricter Laws and Will Ask Harding to Call International Conference

By J. F. IRMITER
Staff Correspondent, Cosmopolitan News Service.)

Chicago, Jan. 3.—Another powerful force joins the army of drug fighters today in the United States. War on "dope" was declared by Oriental Consistory and co-ordinate bodies of Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite Masonry.

A complete organization with fighting plans was announced.

The Oriental Consistory has pledged its 13,000 members to aid in every way the government and other agencies in the drug war.

Colonel Will Gray Beach, narcotic officer in charge of federal forces for several States with headquarters in Chicago, has been made chairman of the organization. Cooperating with them will be Commander-in-Chief Edward L. Johnson, Oriental Consistory; Roy S. Hill, head of Rose Croix; William H. Dellenbach, head of Princes of Jerusalem, and Dr. Olive J. Graham, head of Van Rensselaer Lodge of Perfection. They are all thirty-third degree Masons.

Scottish Rite bodies in all sections of the United States will be enlisted. Remedies sought will be new State laws to cope with the traffic, ways and means to care for addicts and the preparation of resolutions calling on President Harding to set aside a week known as "Anti-Narcotic Week" and to urge an international conference.

Boston Elks Urge "Anti-Dope Week" Drive

A national anti-dope week with every agency for the stamping out of the narcotic drug traffic is urged by Boston Lodge of Elks in connection with the national campaign being conducted by the order.

T. C. O'Brien

The idea was broached to Boston Lodge by District Attorney O'Brien, who presented a resolution calling on President Harding to designate a week. This was unanimously adopted.

Amazing statistics relative to the dope evil were presented by Mr. O'Brien when urging the adoption of his resolutions. Among the more startling statements were:

"It is conservatively estimated that there are 1,000,000 drug addicts in the United States and the cost to each daily is $5.

MORE ADDICTS THAN CHINA.

"The United States with its population of 100,000,000 consumes more habit-forming drugs than does China, always considered drug enslaved, with her 400,000,000.

"Since March, 1922, more than 200 drug peddlers have been arrested in Boston alone and in most every case they have been sentenced from three to five years in jail."

The great need of drastic action to rid the country of the evergrowing menace was vividly portrayed by Mr. O'Brien and his statements as to the alarming extent of the traffic astounded the majority of his listeners, who had no idea of the scope of dope.

O'BRIEN'S RESOLUTION.

The O'Brien resolution:

"Whereas, Incontrovertible evidence proved that despite existing laws in this country traffic in the narcotic drugs, known as opium, morphine and cocaine, continues to spread misery and want not only in the United States, but throughout the world, and

"Whereas, It has been conclusively shown that the use of the above habit-forming drugs is annually showing an alarming increase despite laws to the contrary, therefore be it

"Resolved, by Boston Lodge No. 10 of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, in meeting assembled, that the President of the United States be respectfully requested to set aside a week to be known as National Antidope Week, and that he not only set in renewed motion every possible governmental agency whose function it is to stamp out this evil, but that he cause to be gathered together an international conference of competent men and women who will formulate plans and methods of procedure looking toward the eradication of the above evil, not only in the United States, but in every other country in the world."

BRINGS ORANGES BIG AS GRAPE FRUIT

DAVIS C. DRINKWATER.

With New England shivering under a blanket of snow comes a visitor from sunny Florida with word of sunshine and heat. Davis Drinkwater, and his father, Horace Drinkwater, of Boston, are in town with a two bushel basket of oranges just picked from the trees of the Drinkwater estate in Florida. "The oranges are as big as good sized grape fruit at this season of the year," Davis asserts. The two bushel basket which accompanied the Drinkwaters on their trip here, would only hold three dozen of the large oranges.

HOPE FOR PEACE SHATTERED BY DE VALERA

Dublin, Jan. 8 (By International News Service).—Hopes for Irish peace were dwindling fast today owing to the demand of Eamon De Valera that his followers be treated as representatives of a separate government.

Representatives of most of the Sinn Fein clubs in and around Dublin met Sunday afternoon, but no definite action was taken aside from the suggestion that Ardfhela Gaelic league be reconvened to assist in restoring peace.

Five persons were burned to death early today in the destruction of a dwelling by fire, believed to have been set by incendiaries.

Mrs. Maud Gonne MacBride, a Republican sympathizer, who was arrested because of her anti-Free State speeches, has been released.

Dublin, Jan. 8.—Twenty-eight irregulars were arrested at Glanigan, Westmeath, by national troops operating from Mullingar. A quantity of arms and ammunition was seized.

Dublin, Jan. 8.—Dublin City and County Sinn Fein organizations decided to appeal to the Sinn Fein meeting at Mansion House, to throughout Ireland to assist in the movement to secure a "just and permanent peace."

Cork, Jan. 8.—Free State forces were finally victorious in a seven and a half hour battle raging around Cork in which seven irregulars were killed and nineteen wounded.

The fighting started when the first Free State outpost at Mill street, near Cork, was captured by a trick perpetrated by the irregulars.

The attackers were led by a man disguised as a priest, and who was accompanied by a woman.

The mock priest and the woman shot two sentries, and then with their detachment rushed the position. The second outpost was captured by the same ruse.

In the attack on the main Free State post, at the Carnegie Library, fifty irregulars took part with thirteen machine guns.

HOLD SUSPECT IN AXE MURDER FINGERPRINT

Cleveland, Ohio, Jan. 8.—Police today were comparing bloody fingerprints on an axe found in the hardware store of Harry Kelm with those of Fred Goetling, and said they expected to formally charge Goetling with the murder of Kelm.

Kelm's body, hacked to pieces, was found in his store. The axe was taken from Kelm's stock by the slayer.

Goetling, with clothing and shoes bloodstained, was arrested at his home nearby, and he had a lodge receipt issued to Kelm, according to the police.

Goetling recenily was released from the State Hospital for the Criminal Insane. He was committed ten years ago after writing an anonymous letter in which he admitted beating to death with clubs Miss Louise Wolf and Miss Mabel Foote, Marma Heights school teachers. Later he established an alibi, and said he had written the letter as a joke.

Nineteen years ago he was convicted of a murder that parallels that of Kelm and was sentenced to life imprisonment, but was adjudged insane, transferred to the State Hospital and later dismissed as cured.

Goetling today told the police the blod on his clothes was the result of a fight he and a companion had with a negro. His companion admitted having been with Goetling early Saturday evening, but denied they had been in a fight.

HELD ON CHARGE OF ROBBING COACH 'CAV'

Harry Green of West Newton street, charged in Roxbury District Court, with larceny from Major Frank Cavanaugh, football coach at Boston College, while on a car at Belmore Station, last Saturday evening, pleaded not guilty and his case was continued to January 19. He was held in $2,500. He was also charged with the larceny of a pair of gloves and three handkerchiefs valued at $5.

FOUR KLANSMEN FACE ARREST IN MURDERS

By WM. K. HUTCHINSON.
(International News Service.)

Bastrop, La., Jan. 8.—Four actual members of the "hooded mob" which brutally murdered Watt Daniel and Thomas F. Richards of Mer Rouge, after barbarous tortures have been identified by Department of Justice investigators.

The four men are under constant surveillance of federal agents and their arrests are imminent.

The arrest of this quartet will be the signal for a number of additional arrests of alleged accomplices. The latter will be charged with being accessories to the murders through actions either prior to the crime or as guilty in hiding the murders. An offer of complete immunity, it was learned, will be offered to the first mob member who confesses.

EXPECT CONFESSIONS.

A decision to offer the immunity was reached at a secret conference between Attorney-General A. V. Coco, head of the State's legal forces, his staff and Department of Justice agents.

The possibility of an early confession loomed strongly today.

A holiday in the "open hearing" proceedings which caused the adjournment from Saturday to Tuesday was being used by the State's prosecutors to arrange their case for the remainder of the week.

Beginning tomorrow the State will produce evidence intended to show the Ku Klux Klan was involved in the murders, it was announced.

This was to be accomplished through witnesses who will testify the black-hoods worn by the mob were regular garb of the Klan when its members went on "vengeance mission."

TOWN REMAINS QUIET.

Witnesses will also testify that the Klansmen who captured Daniel and Richards several weeks prior to their murder wore the same type of hoods.

On this first kidnaping the two murdered men were warned to discontinue their opposition to the Klan.

The town remained quiet today, but with an ever-present undercurrent of suspense. The demobilization of one of the four National Guard units in Morehouse Parish arrested little more than a ripple of excitement.

A visit of State pathologists to lake LaFouche, where the bodies of Daniel and Richards were found, produced no new evidence.

REVERE VETS ELECT OFFICERS

The annual meeting of the Revere Veteran Firemen's Association was held at the clubhouse in Beachmont yesterday, at which a large number of candidates were admitted. His Honor Mayor Thomas A. Sloane, being one of the number. President Jake Webber, after many years of service, declined to be a candidate for re-election as he is soon to take up his residence in Marblehead. President F. L. Brown, First Vice-President Charles Perry, Second Vice-President G. W. Boynton, Treasurer Basford, Secretary Kneip, Foreman Bishop, Trustees Permateo, Clark, Tainsburg and Servitelli, N. E. Delegate Klappert and Massachusetts Delegate Basford were installed into office. The meeting was followed by a luncheon and entertainment.

ARREST LAST SUSPECT IN BAKERY HOLDUP

With the arrest today of Edward Barrington, 26, at Gloucester, the police say they have the last member of the band that held up and robbed a number of employes of the New England Baking Company in Somerville on December 16. Two others, George F. Perry and Philip Goldberg, are en route from Chicago under police guard. They were caught Saturday. Alec McDonald, fourth one of the gang, was arrested the day after the crime.

200,000 ATTEND INAUGURAL FEAST

Oklahoma City, Okla., Jan. 8. (By the Associated Press).—With fire burning in the mile of barbecue pits at the State fair grounds here today Oklahoma was ready for festiveness reminiscent of plains days for the inaugural celebration of Governor-elect J. W. Walton.

The new executive is to take his oath of office in the House of Representatives. Twenty-four hours later he will again take the same oath out-of-doors, on a platform of logs.

Indians, cowboys, farmers and settlers, old-timers and the newest comers, will stand 200,000 strong to witness the ceremony.

The celebration will last until midnight Wednesday. Tons of barbecued meat will be served Tuesday noon after the open-air inaugural.

Nearly 200 freight car loads of wood will be burned in cooking the beef, mutton, bear, antelope, squirrel and rabbit for the feast. One hundred thousand loaves of bread and 100,000 buns will be used in sandwiches.

Two 10,000-gallon coffee urns erected at the grounds are heated by a steam engine.

RUSSIAN REDS LAUNCH ATTACK "ON HEAVEN"

Moscow Jan. 8. (By the Associated Press).—The young Communists, observing the Christmas of the Julian Calendar yesterday, launched their widely heralded "attack upon heaven," in a grotesque carnival procession that was a mockery of the world's great religions.

Thousands of students did a gigantic snake dance around a great bonfire. The climax came when the young people gleefully tossed into the flames straw and paper figures representing the deities of the Christian, Mohammedan, Jewish and Buddist religions.

The Russian Christmas had been especially chosen by the young Communists as the occasion for shattering by mockery the ancient Yuletide story and the traditions which their organization hails as "religious myths."

Flaring stars of red, burlesques of the star of Bethlehem, were borne aloft at the head of the parade, followed by posters and banners upon which were daubed cartoons of deities and saints.

There were no disorders, neither was there an attempt to prevent regular Christmas services. But here and there a street beggar, evidently oblivious of the travesty, wandered through the crowd whispering, "Alms in the name of Christ on Christmas Day."

READING'S FIRST CASE IS BIGAMY TRIAL

District Attorney Arthur C. Reading prosecuted his first case in the Criminal Sessions of the Middlesex Court today. Charles Cressman, alias John J. FLOODS INUNDATE TOWNS IN OREGON

Seattle, Wash., Jan. 8.—Flood waters in the White River Valley, between Seattle and Tacoma, were receding slowly, according to reports reaching here at midnight, but all highways between the two cities were impassable.

The towns of Kent and Thomas and a part of Auburn were inundated. All farms were transformed into lakes.

Oregon, Jan. 8.—Flood waters drew a closer cordon about Portland today, while reports from all sections of Western Oregon pictured vast areas under water and many towns and communities isolated.

REPORTS SEEING DE VALERA IN U. S.

New York, Jan. 8.—Eamon de Valera, the "President of the Irish Republic," may be in this city. A newspaper man who was with de Valera in Ireland, says he saw him in Grand Central terminal and that just a few minutes after a train pulled out for Rochester where De Valera's mother has her home. Irish leaders scoffed at the statement.

"Prices realized on Swift & Company sales of cattle sold in Boston for week ending Saturday, Jan. 6th, on wholesale meat cut, ranged from 6.10 cents to 14.00 cents per pound and averaged 12.45 cents per pound."—Advt.

That's Film

That dingy coat on teeth

See the change when you remove it

When teeth look dingy and cloudy the trouble lies in film.

Film can now be vanquished combated. The glistening teeth you've seen everywhere prove that it can be done. Millions of people of nine 50 nations are proving it every day.

You can prove it by this ten-day test. And once you have you will never again leave that dingy film on teeth.

A constant threat

Film is that viscous coat you feel. It clings to teeth enters crevices and stays. The tooth brush alone cannot end it. No ordinary tooth paste can effectively combat it.

So film was left to cloud the teeth, and threaten serious damage night and day. Tooth troubles were constantly increasing. Beautiful teeth were seen less often than now. For dingy teeth and most tooth troubles are due to film.

How teeth are ruined

Film absorbs stains, making the teeth look discolored. Film is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. Think of leaving on teeth and between the teeth a grimy coat like that.

New discoveries

Dental science, after long research, has found two film combatants. One acts to curdle film, one to remove it, and without any harmful scouring.

Watch the change

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear.

Avoid Harmful Grit

Pepsodent curdles the film and removes it without harmful scouring. Its polishing agent is far softer than enamel. Never use a film combatant which contains harsh grit.

Able authorities proved those methods effective. Then a new-type tooth paste was created, based on modern research. Those two great film combatants were embodied in it.

That tooth paste is called Pepsodent, now advised by leading dentists the world over.

These results also

Pepsodent also multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. That is there to neutralize mouth acids, the cause of tooth decay.

It multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva. That is there to digest starch deposits which may otherwise ferment and form acids.

Those are Nature's great tooth-protecting agents. Soapy tooth pastes decrease their power. Pepsodent gives them manifold effect

For dainty people

People who want prettier teeth—whiter, cleaner, safer teeth—are adopting this new method. You meet them wherever you go — with teeth that others envy.

DEMPSEY EAGER TO BATTLE BRENNAN-JOHNSON WINNER

CHAMPION ASKS FOR ACTION IN RING

By JACK CONWAY.

Jack Kearns, Dempsey's manager, will be at the ringside when Bill Brennan and Floyd Johnson battle in their fifteen-round bout at Madison Square Garden, New York, Friday night.

Kearns will do some hopeful waiting. If the winner shows real class, Kearns will celebrate along Broadway. All because it will mean that Dempsey, greater fighter than John L. Sullivan, will get an opportunity to display his ability in the ring.

Dempsey hasn't fought since he battered Carpentier into a human pulp. This is not the champion's fault. He would like to fight some good man each month. The learned boxing solons of this country, however, seem to think any heavyweight you might mention would be a setup for "Tiger Jack."

Perhaps things will change after Friday night's quarrel. Brennan or Johnson may show something. If the victor looks impressive, there is no reason why Dempsey should not be given a chance to fight.

Mickey Walker, a short ender, crushed Jack Britton.

Jim Corbett, a short ender, made the mighty Sullivan look ridiculous.

Johnny Wilson, supposed to be a setup, snatched the middleweight crown from Mike O'Dowd's brow.

Possibly some other supposed set up could defeat Dempsey if given a chance.

* * *

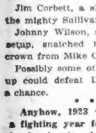
Anyhow, 1923 will probably be a fighting year for Dempsey. He is already signed to battle Harry Wills at an outdoor show. He can also go to England to knock over Joe Beckett. A few indoor bouts would fill his cup of happiness.

* * *

Incidentally, Dempsey does not intend to be broke when his days as fighter are done. He is investing heavily in Los Angeles real estate. He now holds properties worth more than $300,000. Which proves that the world's greatest fighter, unlike Babe Ruth, is not blinded by the applause of the public which, at the most, is only temporary.

Armory A. A. Has Banner All Star Program

The Armory A. A. has a banner all star card booked for tomorrow night. Three ten-round bouts and an eight session affair are on the program. It is the best local offering made in a long time and should pay to capacity. Gaze at this card.



Mike Castle, Lawrence, vs. Tommy Nee, South Boston, ten rounds.

Steve Gustin, South Boston, vs. Johnny Fox, Woburn, ten rounds.

Frankie Johnson, West End, vs. Frankie Ryan, Everett, ten rounds.

Kid Green, Memphis, vs. Mike Mandot, Cambridge, eight rounds.

And they are all winners. Castle has been tumbling over all of our bantamweights. The same can be said of Nee. Therefore, their bout should please.

Gustin recently beat Dutch Zeagan. A fast, clever boxer like Fox is liable to cause him trouble.

As for Johnson, he knocked out Lawrey at Lynn on the holiday. Ryan is skillful and doesn't intend to get in the way of a kayo smash. If his plans are successful, he may win.

The prelim should be one of action.

* * *

You will see a regular fighter at the Casino A. C. of Lynn tonight in the person of Teddy Joyce, Canadian bantamweight champion. Joyce has defeated some of the best of our American bantamweights, including Carl Tremaine. He also knocked out Bobby Dyson. The Canadian is a sweet puncher and fast. Many keen judges of ring affairs, who have seen him in action, claim he is the coming bantamweight champion.

* * *

Joyce will meet some real opposition tonight when he opposes Danny Edwards, world's recently bantamweight champion. Edwards is a flash and says he will display so much speed that Joyce won't have a chance to count with his knyo.

It is a big bout for Lynn. But as the fans of that city are patronizing the offerings of Matchmaker Jack Murphy at the Casino Club they are entitled to the best.

A large number of Boston fans will journey to Lynn for this show.

HARRIS PREPS

The Harris Preps of Salem would like to arrange basketball games with any of the fast semi-pro quintets in the State. For dates write to George Morin, No. 11 Daley street, Salem, or telephone Salem 2383-R or 2111-W after 6 P.M.

Willard Must Wait for Title Bout With Dempsey

JESS WILLARD.

New York, Jan. 8. — Jess Willard will not get a return bout with Jack Dempsey for the world's heavyweight championship until such time as he proves himself worthy of the distinction by disposing of one or another of the eligible contenders. At least, not so far as Tex Rickard's more or less important dollars are concerned. From the inside comes the tip that when Willard arrives in New York, a few days hence, he will be duly apprised of this state of affairs.

Mr. Rickard, it seems, is quite willing to accommodate Jess, but not at the expense of discommoding himself in the region of the wallet.

JOHNNY BUFF ON WAY TO COAST

Johnny Buff, former world's bantam and American flyweight champion, accompanied by Beat Dutch Zeagan. A fast, clever boxer like Fox is liable to cause him trouble.

As for Johnson, he knocked out Lawrey at Lynn on the holiday. Ryan is skillful and doesn't intend to get in the way of a kayo smash. If his plans are successful, he may win.

The prelim should be one of action.

* * *

You will see a regular fighter at the Casino A. C. of Lynn tonight in the person of Teddy Joyce, Canadian bantamweight champion. Joyce has defeated some of the best of our American bantamweights, including Carl Tremaine. He also knocked out Bobby Dyson. The Canadian is a sweet puncher and fast. Many keen judges of ring affairs, who have seen him in action, claim he is the coming bantamweight champion.

* * *

Joyce will meet some real opposition tonight when he opposes Danny Edwards, world's recently bantamweight champion. Edwards is a flash and says he will display so much speed that Joyce won't have a chance to count with his knyo.

It is a big bout for Lynn. But as the fans of that city are patronizing the offerings of Matchmaker Jack Murphy at the Casino Club they are entitled to the best.

A large number of Boston fans will journey to Lynn for this show.

BILL AND MOLLA LEAD TENNIS RANKINGS

By THOMAS L. CUMMISKEY.

New York, Jan. 8.—As expected, William T. Tilden II and Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory are again at the head of the official national ranking lists for men and women singles, respectively, of the United States Lawn Tennis Association. These and other national rankings announced since those of various sectional associations throughout the country are made public.

The ranking committee have arranged lists which, excepting possibly a few instances, will meet general approval. The committee is composed of Russell N. Dana of Pawtucket, R. I., chairman; F. V. Bowen of Buffalo, B. F. Thorward of Cleveland, W. M. Fischer of this city and Dr. P. B. Hawk of Philadelphia.

"The seeded draw," in tournament play last season, resulted in some of the stars not meeting others of the "first ten" in the national tournaments, as well as others. For this reason, a more careful analysis, if anything, was made in the final arrangements.

In the men's national singles, full list of 20, as obtained in all rankings, excepting the double lists, where ten are named, the following arrangement was made by the ranking committee:

1, William T. Tilden, 2d, Philadelphia.
2, William M. Johnston, San Francisco.
3, Vincent Richards, Yonkers, N. Y.
4, R. Norris Williams 2d, Philadelphia.
5, Wallace F. Johnson, Philadelphia.
6, Robert Kinsey, San Francisco.
7, Zenzo Shimizu, New York.
8, Howard Kinsey, San Francisco.
9, Francis T. Hunter, New Rochelle, N. Y.
10, Watson M. Washburn, New York.
11, Lawrence B. Rice, Boston.
12, Stanley W. Pearson, Philadelphia.
13, Hugh G. M. Kelleher, New York.
14, Willis E. Davis, San Francisco.
15, Nathaniel W. Niles, Boston.
16, R. Howard Voshell, New Gardens, L. I.
17, Herbert L. Bowman, New York.
18, Selichiro Kashio, Tokio, Japan.
19, Carl Fischer, Cynwyd, Pa.
20, Wray Brown, St. Louis, Mo.

A marked feature is that for the first time in the history of national rankings Boston is not represented in the "first ten." R. Norris Williams, 2d, for years with the Longwood Cricket Club, transferred last season to Bryn Mawr, Pa., while Lawrence B. Rice and Nathaniel W. Niles, Boston members of the "first ten" in 1921, slipped back to the "second ten."

The Men's National Doubles arrangement should win general approval, and is as follows:

1, Tilden and Richards.
2, The Kinsey Brothers.
3, Washburn and Williams.
4, John Hennessey and Walter Westbrook.
5, Fritz Bastian and Ralph H. Burdick.
6, Samuel Hardy and Voshell.
7, Wallace Johnson and Carl Fisher.
8, James Davies and Philip Neer.
9, Walter T. Hayes and Alex Squair.
10, Phil Bettens and Carl Fisher.

There are selections for the women's national singles rankings which will occasion surprise, undoubtedly. Chief among these is the placing of Miss Leslie Bancroft of West Newton in No. 2 position, and Miss Helen Wills, San Francisco school girl wonder, in No. 3.

Miss Bancroft, the record reveals, defeated Miss Wills the four times in as many meetings, but Miss Wills gave Mrs. Mallory, playing through champion, a hard two-set tussle in the national tourney's final round. Furthermore, Miss Wills gave better battle to Mrs. Mallory in three other affairs, while Miss Bancroft lost all six engagements with the champion.

Mrs. Marion Zinderstein Jessup, No. 4 in the ranking, beat Miss Bancroft, and Miss Wills beat Mrs. Jessup twice and lost once.

The first ten of the list of twenty follows:

1—Mrs. Mallory.
2—Miss Bancroft.
3—Miss Wills.
4—Mrs. Jessup, Wilmington, Del.
5—Mrs. May Sutton Bundy, Los Angeles.
6—Miss Martha Bayard, Short Hills, N. J.
7—Miss Helen Gilleaudeau, Maramoneck, N. Y.
8—Miss Molly D. Thayer, Philadelphia.
9—Miss Marie Wagner, New York.
10—Miss Florence Ballin, New York.

The committees decided not to rank foreign Davis Cup players, who played in the national singles and doubles tourneys, and also to include foreign women.

MEDDYBEMPS

By MERLE H. CARD.

THE recent snowstorm of last week (most all gone now) cost the town $11 to get the mail through town from Charlotts to Cooper. Pretty expensive for a few letters. He didn't bring any p. p. (parcel post), as they said down to the store.

NOBODY has started to fill any lobsters yet as there isn't enough ice in the lake. Probably by the last of the month they will be getting at it. The Summer people all have goblets here who get their ice for them, so they don't have to come away down from New York to get it up.

THE P. M. (postmaster) has got back from a trip away. He looks finer than my ba has been to Boston.

IT is going to be pretty quiet the rest of the Winter here. There hasn't been a thing going on in Town Hall since last September. But then the snow will probably be all gone by June and then we can get to Calais to the pictures.

THERE was a whole crowd of us down to the store the other night and somebody asked Dave Bennett to tell a story and Dave said he never learned but two stories in his life and he had forgotten one of those and he'd forgotten which one of them he had forgot. Looks like snow again here.

WINTER SPORTS KEEP SCHOOLBOYS BUSY

By FRED C. LANE.

A program embracing all Winter sports will open the schoolboy season this week. Interclass track meets, basketball, swimming and hockey will give the youngsters a chance to limber up after their rest of three weeks.

The feature is the opening of the Greater Boston Interscholastic Hockey League tomorrow. Rindge Tech, Cambridge Latin, Malden, Melrose, Arlington, Brookline, Somerville and Newton are the teams in the league.

Last season all the games were staged at the Arena and it was possible to play on schedule. This season the teams must play all games on their own rinks. Because of the uncertainty of ice outdoors there is doubt that such a schedule as the officials arranged can be played.

Basketball will hold interest as many games are listed. Tomorrow Waltham plays at Belmont, Winchester plays at Watertown. Wednesday Dedham plays at Franklin. Friday Natick visits Chelsea and Wellesley plays at Winchester.

Tomorrow Cambridge Latin's hockey team plays Arlington High on Spy Pond. Newton plays Somerville at Somerville and Melrose journeys to Malden for the third league game.

The English High swimming team will oppose the Tech freshmen at Curtis Hall pool on Friday. Huntington School's webfeet meet the Malden team at the "Y" pool on the same day. Malden high swimming team is strong this season.

ENTRIES FOR GOLD SKATES RACES CLOSE WEEK FROM TODAY

BOYS AND GIRLS HAVE ICE DERBY JAN. 20

By CHARLES E. PARKER.

Are you entered in the GOLD SKATES RACES?

If not, enter NOW, for just one week from today the entries will close, and unless your blank is in the hands of the GOLD SKATES EDITOR of the Boston American, all chance to enter this Greater Boston Skating Derby will have been lost.

Herbert Sousa

For the benefit of those not yet conversant with the plan, we outline it again and for the last time. Greater Boston's First Annual Skating Derby, or the GOLD SKATES RACES, has as its object the popularizing of ice skating—the most healthful of all Winter sports—among the young people of Greater Boston.

The program consists of a series of skating races, starting with local championships on every Greater Boston playground or pond entering a sufficient number of contestants; proceeding then to sectional or city or town championships; and culminating in the GOLD SKATES FINALS, at some central place—probably Jamaica Pond.

There will be eight events, namely:

A 220-yard race for boys under 14.

A 220-yard race for girls under 14.

A 440-yard race for boys 14 to 18.

A 440-yard race for girls 14 to 18.

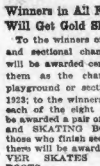
An 880-yard race for boys 16 to 18.

An 880-yard race for boys 18 or over.

An 880-yard race for girls 18 or over.

Winners in All Finals Will Get Gold Skates

To the winners of the playground and sectional championships there will be awarded certificates naming them as the champions of their playground or section for the year 1923; to the winners of the finals in each of the eight classes there will be awarded a pair of GOLD SKATES and SKATING BOOTS, while to those who finish second in the finals there will be awarded a pair of SILVER SKATES and SKATING BOOTS.



Albert Mariowits

Every amateur skater in Greater Boston—boy or girl, young man or woman—is eligible; the senior races will be conducted under the sanction of the New England Skating Association; no entrance fee will be required; the first races in the series—the playground or pond championships—have been tentatively scheduled for Saturday, January 20, but if good ice is not available on that date Saturday, January 27, will be the start of the day Derby.

First Step Is to File an Entry Blank

The first step for those who wish to enter the races and have not already done so is to file an entry blank similar to that appearing on this page, plainly stating the entrant's name, address, age and nearest skating place; the next is to gain as much practice for the races as is possible; then comes the competition in the playground or pond championships.

It is hoped that every playground will furnish a sufficient number of entrants to provide real competition in each of the eight events. In case a playground or pond does not show a sufficient number for this purpose, those who have entered from that playground or pond will be requested to report to the next nearest playground or pond for the first series of races.

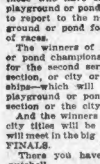
The winners of these playground or pond championships will qualify for the second series of races—the section, or city or town championships—which will be staged on a playground or pond central to the section or the city.

And the winners of the section or city titles will be the skaters who will meet in the big GOLD SKATES FINALS.

There you have the plan in a nutshell.

If You Are a Skate: You Should Enter

Are you a skater? If you are your name should be forwarded to the GOLD SKATES EDITOR at once. You need not be an expert ice performer — many of those already entered learned to skate only last year, yet they are glad to take a chance in the competition, for even if they fail to win the big prizes this year they will have gained experience that will enable them to do so next year or the year after, for it is the plan to make the GOLD SKATES RACES an annual event.



Jean H. O'Hare

As a matter of fact few Greater Boston skaters have had opportunity to know just how capable they are on the mad runaway, for only through competition can they learn that, and there has been no such opportunity offered them as there now is in the coming Ice Skating Derby.

Here's a batch of them who forwarded their names this morning. Do you know any of them? Do you think you can beat them? Is your playground or pond represented in the list? Answer these questions by filling your entry blank at once.

SCHOOLBOYS IN BIG ATHLETIC TOURNEY

According to an announcement made by the committee in charge of the Greater Boston interscholastic track meet, entries are pouring into the office in great numbers. The barring of school teams from the B. A. A. games is said to be the reason.

This year's meet should be the largest ever. This annual affair since its beginning has had the endorsement of every school that ever participated.

Lynn English High will be as strong in the junior and intermediate divisions as in the past. Judging from the manner in which the juniors carried off honors in the interclass meet held recently.

It was this same division that helped the Lynn seniors to win the award over their rival. Lynn Classical, last year. Coach George Sexton has proved himself an able teacher in track.

SAILOR FRIEDMAN PUTS UP JACK

Announcement has been made by the New York State Athletic Commission that Dick Curley, manager of Sailor Friedman, the Chicago lightweight, had posted a $2,500 forfeit with that body to bind a match with Benny Leonard for the world's lightweight title.

Friedman met the present champion in an eight-round no-decision contest at the Ice Palace, now known as the Arena, in Philadelphia, some months back and gave a good account of himself.

WALNUTS WINNERS IN BASKETBALL LEAGUE

The Nut Basketball League of the Y. M. C. A. closed its season with the Walnuts as the champions. The teams finished in the following order: Walnuts, won 7, lost 2; Hickory, won 5, lost 4; Cocoanuts, won 4, lost 4; Butnuts, won 3, lost 5.

Throughout Massachusetts and Rhode Island similar Nut leagues are in vogue at Y. M. C. A.'s, and in April a Two State Nut League tournament will be held to decide the championship.

The following men will represent the Walnuts, winners of the local league: A. J. Fecks, captain; F. L. Lovely, M. Rubin, R. Benson, B. Theckeberry, D. G. Martin and B. J. Levine.

Arlington Plays Two

Arlington will play two games this week. Tomorrow afternoon it will open its Greater Boston Interscholastic Hockey League season against Cambridge Latin and on Saturday afternoon it will play Stone School.

BOSTON HOCKEY CLUB PLAYS UNICORNS

Boston Hockey Club's victory over the New Haven Westminsters Saturday night was a distinct victory for Ralph Winsor, coach of the team, and one who has openly resented the importation of Canadian players to this country. It also made the team a factor in the United States League.

Winsor's sextet will battle the B. A. A. Wednesday night in a United States League match. The Unicorn team is one of the most powerful club outfits ever gathered in this country. To beat this bunch is quite a contract.

Although Boston College does not view with alarm its game with Tech Thursday night, the players from University Heights realize that it will be tougher to overcome the engineers than a smoother opponent. This is the first game of the twin bill Thursday night. The other game features Boston University and Massachusetts Aggies.

If Boston College should settle down to the passing game, they should give the Victorias a keen battle Friday night.

Harvard will face a hard task Saturday night when it will entertain Princeton. Princeton has a be-a-man hockey team and every Crimson player realizes this fact. The Crimson must be as good as against Toronto University.

BIG ENTRY LIST FOR ST. JOSEPH'S

The amateur boxers will compete in another boxing tournament under the direction of the St. Joseph T. A. S. tomorrow night at Commercial Hall, Bowdoin square.

It is expected that one of the largest entry lists of the season will be received. All the boxing stars of Greater Boston will seen in action.

The committee will not pick the Boston boxers for the tri-city show until after this show as it will be the last show before the tri-city tournament.

Five classes will be held. They include 112, 118, 126, 135 and 147 pounds. All classes will be open. Entries will close with Frank Hannon, No. 95 Cambridge street.

WILLIE HOPPE IN TRAINING AGAIN

Willie Hoppe, world's champion at 18.2 balkline billiards, has started serious training for the defence of his title in a challenge match next March. Hoppe's opponent in the titular event will be decided in a series of three games now on in Chicago, between Jake Schaefer and Roger Conti.

Willie Hoppe

Hoppe reports that the arm which bothered him in the recent International tournament at which he regained the championship is now as good as ever.

Notwithstanding his return to old-time form and health, Hoppe proposes to take no chances in defending his title, and will continue his practice and exhibition sessions until the time of the challenge match with either Schaefer or Conti.

SAY KILBANE WILL GRAB $50,000

Johnny Kilbane is reported to have been assured of $50,000 when he fights Eugene Criqui next May at the Polo Grounds. If Jawn gets this sum, which we don't believe, none can blame him for clinging to his tarnished diadem. With Criqui drawing down $50,000 the fight would have to attract a tremendous gate, which it won't.

MURPHY LEADING FOR 'AUTO AGE'

Jimmy Murphy, the "speed king" of 1922, is leading the list of candidates for the presidency of the new Association of Auto Aces, which will hold its organization meeting at the Motor Show at Madison Square Garden this week. The mail vote among the foremost dirt track and speedway drivers of this country shows Murphy in front by a scant margin.

Tommy Milton, that premier daredevil of 1919-1920 and 1921, is a close runnerup to Murphy for the honor, while others in the race are Ralph De Palma and Ira Vail, the Brooklyn speed demons. RANNEY AND BROWN HAVE 64 BEST BALL

Pinehurst, N. C., Jan. 8.—A remarkable best ball score of 31—33—64 was made by A. Elliott Ranney and "Rusty" Brown in a four-ball match played on the championship course at Pinehurst. The par of the course is 71. Ranney and Brown accumulated eight birdies, between them, and were both ever par on only a single hole.

GRILLWOMAN IN DEATH OF INN KEEPER

Freeport, N. Y., Jan. 8.—Mrs. Billie Wells, housekeeper at the Massapequa Inn, was questioned by the district attorney today in connection with the shooting of James S. Pettit, superintendent of the resort, who was found dying from a gunshot wound in the chest early today.

Waiters and the chef at the resort told the police that Mrs. Wells and Pettit had quarreled late into the night. The report of a shot ended the quarrel, they said, and they ran into Pettit's room, to find him dying from a wound in the chest.

Police later found Mrs. Wells at the nearby home of Harry Pearsall. She admitted having quarreled with Pettit but denied having shot him.

She told the authorities the quarrel had resulted from differences between her employer and herself concerning his alleged expenditure of the inn receipts. She charged that Pettit was $1,700 in arrears in rent.

Two Recent Betrothals Interest Boston's Society Set, Says Betty Alden

By BETTY ALDEN.

EVIDENTLY the idea that Romance and June are inseparable is not all to the good, for not only did quite a number of smart brides choose December as their wedding month, but January is already abounding with important betrothal announcements.

Over the past week-end the fashionable world learned of the engagement of Miss Louisa Weld, daughter of the A. Winsor Welds of Chestnut Hill, to Alfred W. Douglass of Brookline. Also came the news that Miss Lucia Wheatland, daughter of the Richard Wheatlands of Beacon street, will become the bride of John F. Fulton of St. Paul, Minn.

Louisa Weld, who came out with the popular group of 1919 Sewing Circle girls and belongs also to the Vincent Club, is the sister of Mrs. Charles B. Blanchard (Theresa Weld). The latter is regarded as one of the country's finest fancy skaters, and has won no end of trophies for her nimbleness on the ice. Mr. Douglass, who graduated from Harvard with the class of '21, served in the Naval Aviation Corps during the World War.

Miss Louisa Weld, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Winsor Weld of Chestnut Hill, whose engagement to Alfred Douglass of Brookline has just been announced. Miss Weld is a member of the Vincent Club, the Junior League and the 1919 Sewing Circle.

MISS LOUISA WELD

Miss Wheatland, I note, is a sister-bud of Miss Weld, both coming out with the 1919 group. The Wheatlands have a country place in Topsfield, where they're always giving jolly house parties, especially for young folk. The youngest daughter, Miss Martha Wheatland, made her debut this year and was elected to the Junior League. Another daughter is Miss Anna Wheatland, the two sons being David and Stephen Wheatland. It was only last week that there was a merry party on at the Wheatland place, when the guests enjoyed all sorts of outdoor sports.

Last week came the much-talked-of tidings that Nina Higginson, the dark-haired daughter of the Francis L. Higginsons, was to become the bride of Bernard F. Rogers, Jr., of Chicago. Also did the past week find Rose Fessenden and Edward Bigelow with the attendants for their marriage—scheduled for the 27th—all picked. What with December's last Saturday featuring the Fraser-Bowditch and Warren-Thorndike nuptials, it seems as though Romance was still very much "among those present."

THE Misses Sarah and Mary Andrews of Commonwealth avenue, who are of the Boston colony at Hot Springs, drove the other afternoon to the Cascades, returning in time for tea at the Homestead.

THE Rev. Endicott Peabody —who has probably officiated at more smart ceremonials uniting Boston folk than almost any other clergyman—and Mrs. Peabody, went over to New York the other evening for the opera. They attended the performance of "Carmen," when they were the guests of Professor and Mrs. H. Fairfield Osborn. Also with them were Mr. and Mrs. H. Fairfield Osborn, Jr.

MISS HARRIET ROYCE, re-butante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick P. Royce of Dedham, attended the large dinner given in New York at the Colony Club by Mrs. Walter Oakes for her daughter, Miss Maude Oakes. Following the dinner the guests went on to the second of the Junior Assembly dances held in the ballroom suite of the Ritz-Carlton. Many matrons of Gotham's fashionable contingent entertained at dinner prior to the dance.

"Kitten Notes" Told of Isenbeck's Love

ENDEARING PHRASES IN POEMS

Wrote Mother of His Baby Daily Until He Spurned Her to Wed Another

Miss Nellie Leck, the mother of his baby son, was once Ernest Gustaf Adolf Isenbeck, Jr.'s "Dearest Kitten."

In letters filled with endearing phrases, the versatile Gustaf recorded his amorous feelings and, on occasions, he even broke into verse.

Before he met the Ohio heiress, for whom he spurned the Beverly girl, Gustaf hardly let a day pass without writing of his love and steadfastness.

Among the affectionate pennings are the following:

"Dearest Kitten:

"I always keep the promises I gave or rather made to you. Never will as for ever having anything to do with another woman, my vow was I touch another drop of liquor and as holy as any matrimonial vow ever was or ever shall be. Every ambition I have is builded in you and if you choose to cast me aside it in no way changes me.

DREAMS OF HER LOVE.

"I shall always think of you and strive to make myself worthy at least of having the right to love and worship you. You can take everything from me but one thing and that is the great love for you I have in my heart. Oh, Dear, how I have dreamed of having your love, and in dreaming have changed one of Kipling's poems to fit my needs. When I feel as though my very heart would tear itself out of its socket I think of it only to hardly be able to keep from breaking down.

GETS 50 CENT RAISE.

"Wife o' mine, oh
Wife o' mine. If I
Were hanged on the highest hill I
Know whose love would follow me still,
Wife o' mine, oh wife o' mine.

"If I were drowned in the deepest sea
I know whose tears would come down
To—wife o' mine—wife o' mine.
If I were damned in body and soul
I know whose prayers would make Me whole—wife o' mine, just wife o' mine," and darling I want you to really know that I will always be to you as is written in the above song.

"There is really no news, except that I got a raise of 50 cents a day and have decided to stay here and work just as I have been doing the last week.

"Your loving and devoted worshiper, "GUSTAF."

DOWN TO LAST DOLLAR.

Another dated Dec. 10, 1921, reads in part:

"Dearest Kitten:

"Here it is Saturday and at last I have found a little work, for how long I cannot say, but for the afternoon, anyway. Every letter helps now, darling, for I am down to my last dollar. At any rate I can't sink for things will turn out all right in the end, I'm sure.

"I must go to work now, dearest, but please write to me. I miss you so. Always your devoted husband,

"GUSTAF."

TO LIVE ON $4 WEEKLY.

Another letter reads:

"Dearest Kitten:

"Just a few lines tonight as I worked today and feel tired, and on the other hand not having heard a word from your since last Thursday, feel that for some unaccountable reason you have changed toward me. I had a very quiet New Year's. In fact I spent it alone in my room, but hope you had a wonderful one. I have given up cigarettes while in the country, by taking up a pipe. This brings my personal expenses down to only 20 cents per week. By the middle of this week I expect to be keeping house and I am going to try and live on $4 a week.

"Your loving and devoted husband,

"GUSTAF."

TELLS LOVE IN SONG.

"BEAUTIFUL GIRL OF MY DREAMS."
"Devotedly dedicated to Nellie Leck."
"By Gustaf Isenbeck."

"O dearest love! My angel dove;
O girl that I adore!
Where are you now, to hear my vow!
I say it o'er and o'er!
Your lovely face, in every place,
Shines on me from afar.
● girl of mine, with eyes divine,
You are my dream, my star.

(Chorus.)

"Beautiful girl of my dreams,
Waking or sleeping I hold thee,
Beautiful girl of my Dreams."

MAMIE WEST.
PAUL REED.
JANET WEST.

I am longing to hold thee,
Come to me, over the sea,
Come from the place of your hiding,
Come to my arms, safe from all harms,
Where love is ever abiding."

FROM "JUST A WILD GOOSE."

"Dearest Kitten:

"Tell me, dear, have you tired of me so soon, or what is the trouble? I am sorry if it is something I have done or not done, and want you to know, Kitten, that I have already tried my best to show you how much I really love you and—Oh, what's the use of my going on? If you can't believe me of course, why there is no use in my telling you.

"As you said, time will tell, but I do hope, Nel, that you don't realize too late. One can never tell just what will happen to me. I might die or anything might happen.

"Sometimes I think that you just want to hurt me, and then sometimes I feel that it is because you don't care. You have often said that 'it doesn't pay to care,' but just the same, dear, when one really loves they can't help but care. We all have our faults, and as I've told you, I have more than my share, but love either is blind or forgiving, and an attempt at right, even though it may be a failure, is lots better than no attempt at all.

"Just a 'Wild Goose,'

"GUSTAF."

Isenbeck, charged in Salem District Court with being the father of a three-year-old boy by Miss Leck, was found guilty. He appealed.

CHINESE MAID JILTS FIANCE FOR MOVIES

Washington, Jan. 8—Mildred Wen Chinese maiden, averse to matrimony, has left for Hollywood, Cal., to become a motion picture actress. Her would-be bridegroom, George Num Lee son of a rich Chinese, was left waiting at the Chinese shrine before which the delayed ceremony was to have been performed today. Mildred, a fugitive from her parents after their third attempt to persuade her to marry Lee, slipped quietly out of the city.

Shivering Women in Night Clothing Carried Down Ladders to Safety

Twenty-nine persons were rescued, many of them carried down ice-covered ladders in freezing temperature, when fire was discovered in the apartment house at No. 167 Huntington avenue, Back Bay, early today.

The rescued, most of whom were women, were taken from their beds and rushed to safety clad only in their night clothing. They shivered with the intense cold for several minutes until given hospitality by residents in nearby blocks.

All others were carried to safety via the ladders with Lieutenant Toomey and Ladderman Sullivan of Ladder No. 13 passing the rescued to a human chain of their comrades human chain of their comrades.

The blaze started in the basement of No. 167 and spread rapidly to the first floor and through the walls.

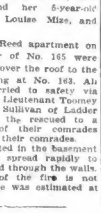
DALEY OUT FOR BROOKLINE BOARD

The political bonnet of Daniel J. Daley, Boston attorney, was tossed into the ring in Brookline when he announced that he will be a candidate for the Board of Selectmen of Brookline at the next election.

The formal announcement was made by Mr. Daley at a gathering of friends at the home of Frederick Meade of Milton road, Brookline. Mr. Daley has been active in Brookline politics for the past twenty years. From 1906 to 1914 he served on the Board of Assessors.



DANIEL D. DALEY.

Judge Philip S. Parker, chairman, and Ernest R. Dane will not be candidates for re-election and Mr. Daley's supporters hope to place him in one of the vacant offices.

BOYS, 17, ADMIT LOOTING CAMP

Leo Marco, James Chisholm and Edward Goodhue, seventeen-year-old Cambridge youths, pleaded guilty on a charge of breaking and entering and larceny at a camp in Weston before Judge Stone in Cambridge today.

The young men pleaded guilty to the theft of an auto in Cambridge, which they took to Weston with them. Patrolman Edwin Kelly knew that two revolvers had been stolen from camp. He caught sight of one of the youths toting a gun.

Confesses Slaying Man, Staying With Body Over Night

Salem, Ct., Jan. 8.—After Charles S. Wilbur had been forty-eight hours trying to get officers here to remove the body of Frank Eary, a woodchopper, whom Wilbur says he killed Saturday night, Coroner J. J. Desmond arrived today.

Wilbur, who is sixty-two, says the man assaulted him with the axe Saturday night. After he shot him he remained all night with the body. The roads were so badly blocked the coroner and sheriff could not get here Sunday.

Wilbur has been arrested.

MATCHES TELLS MOTOR STORY TO GRAND JURY

Robert P. Matches, former Boston manager for Emerson Motors Company, now serving three years as Federal prisoner in Atlanta Penitentiary for his part of that mail fraud, went before the Special Grand Jury of former Attorney-General Allen today as a witness in the Emerson Motors phase of the investigations now under way.

Dapper as possible in a neat business suit and apparently quite gratified at the trip and its break in the monotony of "pen" life, Matches strode into the courthouse under watch of Deputy Warden Higgins, former resident of Malden.

Higgins and his charge arrived in Boston late Friday evening and remained quietly at a hotel until time to go to the courthouse today.

This was Matches' second trip here as a witness in Emerson Motors inquiry, he was here as one of the star Allen witnesses at the ouster trial of former District Attorney Joseph C. Pelletier.

Several police witnesses were on hand to add their testimony in this case in which Mr. Allen charged that Pelletier and Daniel H. Coakley, disbarred lawyer, conspired to secure and did secure $20,500 from the Emerson Motors Company to avert prosecution.

MANY POLICE WITNESSES.

The police witnesses included Sergeant John J. Manning of Roxbury Crossing Station, formerly of Court Square Station; Sergeant Thomas Trainor of Athens Street Station, South Boston, formerly of Court Square Station; Sergeant Frank Magee of Court Square Station; Inspector George Farrell of the "bank squad" at headquarters; former Inspector Elias F. Waite, now an investigator for the State Department of Public Utilities; and Captain James F. McDeavitt of Joy Street Station, formerly attached to the district attorney's office in the Pelletier regime.

It was Waite, as police inspector, who went over to New York in the original investigation of Emerson Motors by the Pelletier office.

Chief Inspector John R. McGarr was another police witness in the case.

COMPLETE EMERY CASE.

A civilian witness was George Stimpson. Newton business man who wrote to Pelletier, asking if Emerson Motors was all right for investments and who received an affirmative reply.

Mrs. Jennie S. Chase of Brookline and her daughter, Mrs. Curtis W. Emery, were summoned today to complete the Emery case, in this case. Mr. Allen charged that Pelletier, Coakley and former District Attorney Corcoran of Middlesex with attempted extortion of $50,000 from Mrs. Chase and the Emerys.

Mrs. Chase appeared later in the day and went before the Grand Jury.

Investigation of the Metropolitan Motors, or Warren C. Daniels case, has been completed by the Special Grand Jury. The chief witness was Henry C. Bornstein, New York counsel for the company. In this case charge was made that Pelletier and others attempted extortion of $10,000.

MINTON IS PROUD OF K L A N

Asserts Right of American-Born Protestants of Country to Organize

Telfair Minton, secretary of the Loyal Coalition, named Saturday in the Boston American as a member of the Ku Klux Klan, in an interview declared he was proud that he is a member of the Klan and defended the organization.

Mr. Minton declared that there are now close to one hundred thousand Klansmen in Massachusetts, and that the Klan is still growing. He declared that he is not "only not ashamed to admit" membership in the Klan, but is proud of the fact that he is a member.

ADMITS MEMBERSHIP.

"I am a member of the Ku Klux Klan," said Mr. Minton. "But before going any further I want it understood that the Loyal Coalition is not connected with the Ku Klux Klan in any way. The Loyal Coalition has not indorsed the Klan and has nothing to do with it. The fact that I am a member of the Klan is purely a personal matter and has nothing to do with the Loyal Coalition, of which I am secretary."

In discussing the Klan Mr. Minton declared that the Klan, as an organization, has never taken the law into its own hands, and added that the Klan expels any member who is discovered doing so.

RIGHT TO ORGANIZE.

"I see no crime in belonging to the Ku Klux Klan," said Mr. Minton. "Why shouldn't we American Protestants have the right to form an organization if we wish? The Catholics have their order. The Jews have theirs. The negro has his. No one complains about anyone belonging to those organizations. Why should they complain about ours?

"The Ku Klux Klan is an organization of clean, 100 per cent. Americans. We have as our great aim the upholding of the Constitution of the United States. What is wrong with that? We aim above all else to uphold law and order.

"The Ku Klux Klan is nothing but an organization of Protestant Americans. To become a member you have to be American born. We of the Klan believe in the separation of the church and the State. We will not owe allegiance to any foreign government, king or potentate.

"We are Americans first, last and all the time. There is nothing about an organization of that kind to be ashamed of. I am proud to belong to an organization of good Americans such as the Klan."

Rabbi Urges Protestants to Drive Klan From U. S.

New York, Jan. 8.—Protestant churches of the United States were called upon to drive the Ku Klux Klan out of the country by pulpit denunciation by Rabbi Joseph Silverman at Temple Emanuel.

The Rabbi said he knew the principles of the Christian churches. He contended that any man who belonged to the so-called "invisible empire" was neither a good Christian or a good Protestant.

Klansmen he referred to as "murderers, pirates, conspirators and a menace to the country."

The January term of the full Bench of the Superior Court opened today. Rev. John H. W. Corbett of Somerville opened the session with prayer. Father Corbett was invited to perform this duty by Chief Justice Rugg, a Unitarian.

Woman Named in Revere Tragedy

Wife of the Man Held in Slaying of Alleged Rival for Her Love

MRS. FELIX JESERALDO

An attempt by Antonio Coppolla of Revere to keep her away from her husband is said to have led to the latter's murder. The woman's mate is accused of the crime. Coppolla was shot dead and then his body was slashed with a knife. The "woman in the case" is standing by her accused mate.

TAIL LAMP LAW IN FORCE; ALL MUST OBEY

The tail lamp law is on, full blast.

All exemptions are off. The police of the State were today assigned to prosecute all violators by Frank A. Goodwin, the State Registrar of Motor Vehicles.

The new law, which compels the use of an auto rear-lamp which will make the number plates visible at night for a distance of sixty feet, actually went into effect on January 1, but Goodwin granted a stay of time in which all the motorists could reasonably comply with it.

Goodwin today said in a letter to the police in which he orders the expiration of this period of grace and asks to prosecute all offenders.

"This law was passed primarily for benefit of the police in order to enable them to apprehend more easily violators of the law and those motorists who cause injury to persons and property. All law-abiding motorists are now obeying it. There are some people who won't obey any law unless they are forced to."

HARVARD OUSTS PROF. HOLMES

The Harvard Corporation failed to ratify the reappointment of Hector M. Holmes of Walpan as professor of patent law in Harvard Law School.

This action was taken despite the unanimous recommendation of the law school faculty, headed by Dean Roscoe Pound, that Holmes be kept as an instructor.

Prof. Holmes.

Holmes was found guilty with Robert Weston of the grievance committee of the Bar Association of receiving papers and a photograph stolen from the office of Daniel H. Coakley. Each was fined $500.

WOMAN CAUSE OF KILLING IN REVERE

A woman was the cause of the murder of Antonio Coppolla, twenty-seven, whose mutilated body was found on the floor of the kitchen at No. 55 Bates street, Revere.

So declare the Revere police, who have arrested Felix Jeserallo, also twenty-seven, of No. 370 Mountain avenue, Revere, and charged him with the crime.

He pleaded not guilty and is held without bail.

The woman is the wife of the accused and she herself has admitted that the dead man forced her to leave her husband and go to him when he threatened her with death.

The crime was committed in the home of Samuel Bochuzzie, a brother-in-law of the victim, who has been questioned at length.

Half a dozen knife wounds, any of which would have proved fatal, were in the man's body. Bullet wounds showed also that he had been shot as he lay on his back on the floor. There was no trace of knife or gun.

Hours after the discovery of Coppolla's body, Revere police returned to the scene of the crime and found Jeserallo, the son-in-law of Bochuzzie, the mixalgman.

Soon afterward a woman asked over the phone if Jeserallo was in the hands of the police. She was told that he was and rang off. Shortly after midnight Jesserallo's wife appeared at the station. She volunteered the information that she was the telephone inquirer.

According to the police she has been living apart from Jesserallo for the past six months. They were married four years ago. Lately, say the police, she and Coppolla the slain man, have been very friendly.

Charles W. Dolan, for twenty-one years messenger to the Justices of the Superior Court, was today appointed assistant clerk of the seventh session of the Superior Court by Chief Justice Hall. The new position carries a salary of $4,300, a jump of $1,700 over the messenger's salary.

CITY WIDE OPEN, SAYS EX-CHIEF WILSON

Ministers Regret the Governor Dodged Issue in Inaugural and Demand New Officials

Failure of Governor Cox to mention law enforcement in his recent inaugural was declared regretable, and the conduct of prohibition enfoirement officials from Commissioner Hayes and State Enforcement Supervisor Elmer C. Potter down was scored in resolutions adopted today at a meeting of ministers of Greater Boston in Park Street Church.

The meeting was called by the Evangelical Alliance of Greater Boston.

Harold D. Wilson, ousted enforcement officer, assailed Potter.

The resolutions were framed by a committee consisting of Rev. Dr. Frank Kingdon, Rev. Dr. A. Z. Conrad, Rev. Dr. David M. Lockrow and Rev. Dr. William V. MacNair.

SORE DIRTY OFFICIALS.

In part the resolutions are:

"The Evangelical Alliance deplores the scandalous condition in this State with reference to the enforcement of the 18th amendment. We regard this deplorable condition as largely due to the indifference and inefficiency of the central office and the insertion of men appointed to prevent illegal liquor selling.

"We are prepared to inquire whether Commissioner Hayes is not subversive of every interest in this State and whether he should not be promptly retired.

"We insist that a man of courage and aggressiveness and with vigorous personality and invincible determination be appointed to take the place of Elmer C. Potter.

DECLARES CITY WIDE OPEN.

"We regret that this most important of all matters before the public, namely law enforcement, should have been ignored by Governor Cox in his recent inaugural.

"We urge the Anti-Saloon League not to be content with a policy of wistful waiting and a slow educational program so inoffensive to the liquor traffickers while outrageous and consistent violations of the prohibitory laws demands an active campaign of law enforcement, and we urge the concentration of effort in securing effective enforcement officials."

Attorney-General J. Weston Allen, expected to speak at the meeting, was not present, but sent a letter endorsing the aim of the gathering.

Dr. Conrad declared that "when 28,000 gallons of liquor is released in this State in one day, that day being December 31, there is something rotten in Denmark."

"There is only one way to enforce prohibition," Wilson declared. "Every time you see a wet head, hit it, and hit it to kill.

"Publicity is the thing the liquor gang is afraid of. Potter is as helpless as a babe on that job. He has fallen down.

"The city is wide open. There was not a single arrest on New Year's Eve and none on New Year's day. Where was Potter at this time? Where was Potter when they pulled off that drunken orgy at the Quincy House? Where was he when they pulled off that 'nursing bottle' banquet?"

Dr. Milford H. Lyon of Winona Lake, Indiana, now holding revival meetings in New Bedford, declared the country was on the brink of ruin as the result of the failure to enforce prohibition.

"Things are morally and religiously in a bad way in this country," he said. "Let bad times come, and disillusion that will make the French you will see in this country, a revolution. Only a great revival will save us."

WHAT DOES WORRY AMOUNT TO?

Almost everybody has a "pet worry."

Usually it is something which never happens, or if it does happen, it is far less serious than expected, or is something which is bound to happen and therefore cannot be avoided, so why worry?

You should be vitally concerned about your future and do what you can to protect yourself from hardships which may come, but this does not mean that you must be in a state of anxiety all the time.

Just what do you worry about? Afraid you will die and leave your family not provided for as they should be?

Fear the children may not choose the right sort of life partners?

There are scores of things to worry about if you will worry.

But what does worry amount to anyway?

It will not help you to accomplish any one thing half so well as if you could do it without worry.

Be sensible, do not worry when you make plans for the future.

Have faith in your ability to turn any tide into success if you keep courage and realize that that state of mind makes one person succeed where another would fail.

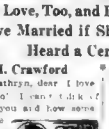
SEEKING A CAREER

She Was in Love, Too, and Perhaps She Would Never Have Married if She and He Hadn't Heard a Certain Poem

By A. M. Crawford

"BUT, Kathryn, dear I love you so! I can't think of anything but you and how some cheap man may come along any minute and take you away from me!"



YOU CAN WRITE AFTER YOU MARRY

The girl sitting beside him in the chimney corner of the little roadster turned to him impulsively.

"Nobody can take me away from you, Bob. I'll tell you that, if the news will be any comfort to you. It's just that I don't want to get married at all until I have accomplished something worth while. I want wonderfully stimulating and exciting too, to write a story and have an editor buy it and print it for thousands to read. Not every girl can do that! And I've said two already."

"You can write after you marry me—write all day long while I am plugging down at dad's office."

"You know I love you Bob but if I marry now, I'll never write. I couldn't do anything half way so I would just settle down to mending house and golfing with you and running around on week-ends with the rest of the bunch!"

"Gee, you've already done more than that bunch of women who are hoofing forth at the hotel tonight. A lot of them are just posing as writers. What have they done?"

"Now, don't take the joy out of my first meeting with them. Bob. I wouldn't have asked you to come along tonight if I had thought you'd poke fun. They're going to recite their own poems tonight. You'll certainly worship them, when you see them. They've excused me because I told them that I would die of heart failure if they called on me!"

A small group of invited guests were chatting in the palm room of the hotel when Bob and Kathryn entered a little later. Presently a stunning y gowned woman with snow-white hair took her place by a flower-decked table and rapped for order.

Then Miss Hettie Karne's name was called.

Bob craned his neck to see her. Miss Hettie was still a girl in mind her grayish hair had been neatly curled for the occasion. A tight band of velvet around her scrawny throat appeared to be holding her head erect. She wore a metallic sort of toilet. Indeed some sob sister type, who'd come home, mother and little children.

The Great Poem.

Some of it wasn't bad by it was the same old line of stuff that Bob had heard from other so he slipped down in his and appeared to be asleep together. Finally Miss Hettie ended her neatly typed pages and beaming through her thick lenses for the first time, said that she would now offer for their approval a poem as yet unpublished which could rank with the supreme work of a great poet had inspired her to write.

The poem was entitled "Spring Again." She hoped that her [illegible] audience would be in sympathy with her because it was her first effort from verse.

Suddenly, Miss Hettie's voice grew louder. She strode dramatically upon her thin, barren breast with her free hand, the other one flicked a sheaf of notes, and she read with fervor:

A human torch
A flutter of green
Quivers for fire
Within its veins,
And Hell, a cross
Of ice Never more
And drip of Autumn rains"

Quiet Girl.

It was a thoughtful, quiet girl who seemed to nestle close against Bob's broad shoulder on the ride home. "Gosh!" said that young man, when he had stepped on the gas, "she'd will to get one thrill of passing, that Jane! The fellow must have loved her to death and touched her by tragedy for her to get over that. She's got a career. I suppose Kathie but what good does it does her, course it won't be like that when we're old. You'll never be old to me!" he added tenderly.

She was so pregnant that Bob looked down at her. His shut off the gas and pulled over side of the deserted road. He was never slow for action either in Fellows or in the good old U. S. A.

Home, home, sweet Karlie doesn't hear that stuff! Haven't it had anything else in the world if you can't have both.

Ready lips, quivering lips met his. She warmed to more than Miss Hettie's allotment of one touch of passion. "Yes" came the echoes of Kathryn's avowal as the two loving things plighted a deathless love.

Meantime Miss Hettie stooping over on her gray wooden box she glowed as she thought of the success of her effort of the evening. Her only regret was that had only known of the good her effort at free verse had really done!

Extra!—The Day She Said Yes

DRAWN BY PEGGY PRENTICE

Copyright, 1923, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

COULD there be a more momentous instant save those of birth or death, maybe—than that which swings the circle of the eager heart when HE woos from HER first "YES!"

There's something so great with promise—so almost-heart stopping in it, singing of the single word, which, oddly enough, banishes singleness from two and makes them one—that all the world seems to stop and stand still, and even to stare at the happy couple.

Is it safely imagination or do two birds, high on a twig near by, look at these lovers and then gaze even more tenderly into each other's eyes? And that extra—whose herald shouts aloud the messages—why, it seems to bear a most peculiar emphasis that points at these two as though with Cupid's dart straight at their hearts.

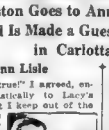
But, then, there IS such a thing as imagination. Yet could there be a finer, sweeter use for any imagination than that which makes the happy pair feel sure THEIR plighted troth is interesting all the wide, wide world that envies them their happiness.

WHEN A GIRL MARRIES

Betty Winston Goes to Anne, Frightened and Tired, and Is Made a Guest and Put to Bed in Carlotta's Home

By Ann Lisle

"THAT'S true!" I agreed, enthusiastically to Lacy's suggestion that I keep out of the matter. "It's sort of drawing a red herring across the trail, isn't it?"



"Or a false scent with an anise bag—I being a bad anise bag." Mr. Lacy smiled and yet gave the effect of grimness.

"Now we've decided. You're in the dark about what your newspaper friend is up to. You hardly remember that you've commissioned him to do a thing out of the ordinary. And he hopes that he's going to come along with some worthwhile results, and soon, too. I'm hoping."

ABRUPTLY HE SEIZED MY HAND

His voice trailed off, and suddenly Mr. Lacy was lost in a brown study. He jerked himself back again and got to his feet with a renewal of the grimness I hardly understand, so alien did it seem to him.

Does His Best

"I do my best, Mrs. Harrison," he said in a voice that was low, but which had the peculiar effect of having about a thousand horsepower back of its clear ring. "I'm never going to be able to tell you how—proud I am of your friendship, your faith and—your confidences. I needn't tell you that they're sacred. I needn't add that I'm going to give them my best. And now—good-night."

Abruptly he seized my hand, wrung it as if we were fraternity brothers, dropped it as if we were foes and then stood aside with an air which forced me to lead the way to the door.

As we came into the front hall the last guest had left after ten, so I answered at once, thinking that the single ring might not disturb Bertha and hoping to avoid any commotion which would deprive her of her slumber. Mr. Lacy stood back while I swung the door open. On the threshold was Betty Winston—a haggard, tired lookin Betty, with her face chalk-white and lined and drawn under her heavy hat of black crepe.

I didn't say a word; I held out my hands, drew Betty close and folded her in my arms. She clung to me. Over and over again I heard her whispering, in a choked voice:

"Anne! Little Anne—I've come home to you."

Her voice seemed so tired and frightened that it could hardly be Betty's strong, perfectly modulated tones. It made my heart ache. I tightened my arms about her and laid my cheek against hers. At last I ventured, in the most matter-of-fact tone:

"Come up to my room and take off your hat, dear. We'll get a bite of supper later. But in the meantime you'll want to freshen up a bit."

Like a child too tired to protest, Betty let me lead her toward the stairs. As we started up, I turned and said with a calmness that cost me a great struggle:

"Anthony Norreys, my dear and wonderful friend, I want you to know what a fine, new friend I have in my advertising consultant, Ralph Lacy. You'll wait and start getting acquainted while I'm gone, won't you?"

This queer and informal introduction was artificial. Strangest of all was the fact that Betty, the gracious and ever-courteous, had taken it for granted that my absorption in her would wipe out everything else. But as if she were in a daze, she let me lead her up to my room. When I saw how ghastly she was, I said—quite without planning to:

"How would you like to climb into my nice white little bed, which just got its full quota of clean linen this morning?"

So Tired

"I'm so tired," murmured Betty. "If I didn't have to talk—or explain, I think I could sleep. I'm so tired, Anne. I want to sleep."

Then, almost as if we were both in a dream, I helped her get ready for the night, dragging things out of my own chiffonobe and dressing her in them. In a whirl of activity I opened my bed, tucked her in, turned down the light and then drew up a chair and sat next to the bed. After a moment Betty put out her hand and found mine. She curled her fingers about it, sighed like a tired child and in two or three minutes her even breathing told me she was asleep. I was not to make sure. After a time I slipped my hand out of the cream, and tiptoed to the door. At the top of the stairs I stopped, gasping for breath, fairly awed by the strangeness of it all.

After I'd tucked Betty Winston into my own bed, and had taken one gasping moment to realize what I'd done, in making her a guest in Carlotta's home, I hurried down to join Tony and Ralph Lacy.

I found them in the sun parlor, in the easy informality of a chat which they interrupted at the first swish of my skirts. Both of them leaped to their feet, and Tony rushed over to seize my hand in his good left hand and staring down at me out of his ice-blue eyes that were fairly ablaze.

"You're a wonderful woman Anne Harrison," he said. "You'd probably retain your poise if a friend blew in with a Comanche Indian astride a calico pony. But what have you done with Betty?"

"I've put her to bed," I said seriously. "She was so tired."

THAT BOY OF YOURS

ARE YOU HELPING HIM TO SUCCEED?

WHAT about your sleek headed boy who leaves a can of grease to paste on bal[l]s who is not giving his scalp a square deal? With the oil he makes a gummy mat of dirt and dandruff. Why can we not give our boys a wholesome contempt for greasy superficiality of every sort—for shiny hair that never is really combed, for lazy hanging back at school and at work, for smooth manners serving only to cover a coarse interior, for an indifferent dress and a sneering at the things we are wont to call sacred.

As a matter of fact if you go deeper into their nature, you will find the young "close eater" and the young "flapper" ordinary human beings. They are spoiled only on the surface. YOUR BEAUTY

NEW SERIES OF AUTHORITATIVE ARTICLES

By Marla Jeritza,

The Famous Prima Donna of the Metropolitan Opera Company and one of the Most Beautiful Women of the Day.

THERE is one feature which of late years has played so small a part in the ensemble of charms that go to make up a woman's beauty that except for its essential usefulness it might seem quite negligible—and that is the ear.

Late reports from Paris, Fifth avenue and Broadway, however announce that ears are "coming into their own" again as popular beauty features for the "smart set" woman are arranging their hair so simply, drawing it straight back from the face, that the ears are left entirely exposed.

Whether the fashion becomes generally popular in this country—and the chances are that it will—is one of very little moment to the beauty and well being of her ears. That she devote to her eyes, her hair and her complexion.

You have heard it said that a woman's age can be told unmistakably from her ears and it is true that the ears are usually the first feature to betray, by their coarse and wrinkled appearance the touch of neglect and the heavy fingers of Father Time.

But nowadays women do not age—at least, they do not in the disagreeable sense—for the typical woman of today grows older so charmingly that she but adds deeper sympathies, more tolerant understanding and a certain charming sophistication to her other allurements as the years pass.

Many an American mother rivals her daughters in youthful charm and this not because she struggles to conceal her age, but because she has learned the secret of retaining her youth by welcoming each deep experience as a new lesson in the school of life, by living simply and wisely, interesting herself in others, and by thinking youth and joy.

So it is that today women need not conceal their ears lest the dreaded wrinkles be disclosed. Those signs of age do not exist if her ears have shared in the sensible care she has given the rest of her body.

It is so simple—and so easy.

She has been careful to cleanse her ears each day in the proper way. This really is an important point to remember, although's such a suggestion from me will bring a smile, for it will remind you of the advice given you in your little girl days.

To soak your ears with soapsuds and then half dry them is not only fatal to their beauty, but may lead to earache, neuritis and other ills. So wash and rinse them gently, then dry them gently but thoroughly inside and out, lest they redden and roughen as the result of chapping.

When you cold cream your face don't forget to extend the same treatment to your ears, afterward removing all trace of the cream. This will prevent wrinkles which so disfigure the ears of some young women.

If your ears are in an unhealthy condition or if you suffer from earaches by all means seek the advice of a specialist. Only when your ears are in normal health can you expect them to be beautiful.

Now and then a woman has trouble with her ears because they stand out. After maturity often a plastic operation is necessary to remedy this defect, and this is not always advisable. If the flair of your ears is not too pronounced the wearing of a muslin cap tied down over your ears at night will in time greatly improve their appearance, and the best time to try this experiment is during the cold Winter nights.

As the last dainty touch to the toilette of your ears, dip your fingers in grain alcohol and rub each lobe gently until it is a rosy pink. Then you will be ready to go forth with your hair arranged with the most generous fashionable severity, if it becomes you that way, and you will know that you have every reason to be proud of your dainty, pearly ears. Or if you prefer to keep them tucked away beneath your curls, you will be happier because you know they are lovely and well cared for.

(In her next article Mme. Jeritza will discuss the nose as an adjunct to beauty.)

THE PRIDE OF PALOMAR By PETER B. KYNE

START THIS NEW STORY TODAY

The story opens on the Rancho Palomar, an extensive tract in Southern California. It is the estate of the Farrels, an ancient California family dating back to the days of the Spanish conquistadores, and enlivened with a dash of Irish.

Old Don Miguel Farrel, alone on the heavily mortgaged rancho with only his last faithful retainer, Pablo Artelan, and the latter's expansive wife, receives a telegram from the War Department at Washington announcing the death in battle in Siberia of his only son, "Don Mike."

False news, as the subsequent scene at the Presidio army fields show where "Don Mike" is mustered out of the service. On the train, homeward bound, he encounters a party of three—an overbearing, wealthy Japanese, a prosperous-appearing American with a down-East accent, and the latter's beautiful daughter. He has dinner with the daughter. Don Mike leaves the train at Gespe and walks home, discovering the grave of his father. Kay Parker arrives at the ranch and tells Pablo Don Mike is not dead. Don Mike arrives and takes charge. He tells the Parkers they may stay as his guests. Don Mike meets his father's enemy and thrashes him. He then drives with Kay to El Toro to attach Loustalot's bank account on an old debt of Don Miguel's. Farrel and the Parkers ride out to see the building of the dam. On the way a panther is chased and roped by Don Mike. Kay offers to pay for the continued building of the dam when her father cancels it.

Bill Conway leaves for the dam after a conference with Mr. Parker

It is a Cosmopolitan Production, direction of Frank Borzage, and featuring Forrest Stanley and Marjorie Daw. It is released as a Paramount picture.

HE stared at her, a variety of emotions in his glance. "Well," he replied, presently, "I suppose I shall deserve that, if I succeed with my plan. However, as a traitor, I'm not even a runner-up with your father. He's going to get a couple of million dollars as the price of his shame! And he doesn't even need the money. On the other hand, I am desperate, mighty unhappy ex-soldier experiencing all of the delights of a bankrupt, with the exception of an introduction to the referee in bankruptcy. I'm whipped. Who cares what becomes of me? Not a soul on earth except Pablo and Carolina and they, poor creatures, are dependent upon me. Why should I sacrifice my last chance for happiness in a vain effort to stem a yellow tide that cannot be stemmed? Why do you taunt me with my aversion to sacrifice my country—I who have sacrificed two years of my life and some of my blood and much of my happiness?"

Suddenly she put her little gauntleted hand up to her face and commenced to weep. "Oh, Don Mike, please forgive me! I'm sorry. I—have no right to demand such a sacrifice, but oh, I thought—perhaps—you were different from all the others—that you'd be a true—knight and die —sword in—hand—oh, dear, I'm such a—little ninny——"

He bit his lower lip but could not quite conceal a smile.

"You mean you didn't think I was a quitter?" His voice was grim and crisp. "Well, in the dirty battle for bread and butter there are no decorations for gallantry in action; in that conflict I do not have to live up to the one that Congress gave me. And why shouldn't I quit? I come from a long line of combination of fighter-quitters. We were never afraid of hardship or physical pain, danger or death, but—we couldn't face conditions; we balked and quit in the face of circumstance; we retired before the economic onslaught of the Anglo-Saxon."

"Ah, but you're Anglo-Saxon," she sobbed. "You belong to the race that doesn't quit—that some how muddles through."

"If I but possessed blue eyes and flaxen hair—if I but possessed the guerdon of a noble lady's love—I might not have disappointed you, Kay. I might still have been a true knight and died sword in hand. Unfortunately, however, I possess sufficient Latin blood to make me a little bit lazy—to counsel quitting while the quitting is good."

"I'm terribly disappointed," she protested. "Terribly."

"So am I. I'm ashamed of myself, but—a contrite heart is not hockable at the only pawnshop in El Toro. Buck up, Miss Parker!"

You have called me Kay three times this afternoon, Miguel——"

He rode close to her, reached over and gently drew one little hand from her crimson face. "You're a dear girl Kay," he murmured, huskily. "Please cease weeping. You haven't insulted me or even remotely hurt my little feelings. God bless your sweet soul! If you'll only stop crying, I'll give you Panchito. He's yours from this minute. Saddle and bridle, too. Take him. Do what you please with him, but for heaven's sake don't let your good mother think we've been quarreling—and on the very second day of our acquaintance."

She dashed the tears away and beamed up at him. "You give Panchito to me! You don't mean it!"

"I do. I told you I might give him away to somebody worth while."

"You haven't known me long enough to give me valuable presents, Miguel," she demurred. "You're a dear to want to give him to me and I'm positively mad to own him, but Mother and Dad might think—well, that is, they might not understand. Of course we understand perfectly, but—well—you understand, don't you, Miguel?"

"I understand that I cannot afford to have your father suspect that I am unmindful of—certain conditions," he answered her, and flushed with embarrassment. "If you do not want Panchito as a gift I shall not insist——"

"I think it would be a good idea for you to permit Dad to buy him for me. He's worth every cent of five thousand dollars——"

"I'll never sell him. I told you this afternoon I love him. I never sell a horse or a dog that I love or that loves me. I shall have to take him back, Kay—for the present."

"I think that would be the better way, Miguel. She bent upon him an inscrutable smile but in the depths of her brown eyes he thought he detected laughter.

"You'll buck up now?" he pleaded.

"I'm already bucked up."

As they rode up to the great barn, Kay disconcerted. "Leave the bird rifle at the door, Kay." Farrel told her. "Pablo will get him home. Excuse me, please, while I take this calf over to Carolina. She'll make a man out of him. She's a wonder at inducing little mavericks like this fellow to drink milk from a bucket."

He jogged away, while Panchito, satisfied that he had performed throughout the day like a perfect gentleman, bent his head and rubbed his forehead against Kay's cheek, seeking some evidence of growing popularity with the girl. To his profound satisfaction she scratched him under the jawbone and murmured audibly:

"Never mind, old dear. Some day you'll be my Panchito. He loves you and didn't he say he could only give you away for love?"

Dinner that night was singularly free from conversation. Nobody present felt inclined to be chatty. John Parker was wondering what Miguel Farrel's next move would be and was formulating means to checkmate it; Kay knowing what Don Mike's next move would be and knowing further that she was about to checkmate it, was suffering through a sense of guilt; Mrs. Parker's sight miles in the saddle that afternoon had fatigued her to the point of disarming her customary spirits, and Farrel had fallen into a mood of deep abstraction.

"Are we to have no music tonight but the chanping of food?" Mrs. Parker inquired presently.

"Hello!" her husband declared. "So you've come up for air, sis, Sarah!"

"Oh, I'm feeling far from chatty, John. But the effect is soporific. Miguel, are you plotting against the whites?"

Struggle of the Last of an Ancient Line to Save Estate From Hands of Japanese

THE SPOILED GIRL

HOW TO REACH UNRULY CHILD

By Beatrice Fairfax

Who Occupies a Unique Position in the Writing World as an Authority on the Problems of Girls.

"MY daughter of twenty is making my life miserable by being disrespectful, unruly and remaining out nights until two and three a. m. She goes auto riding with strange men, smokes and frequents cheap cabarets. I have warned and advised her, but she pays no heed. I supply her with money for pleasures and clothes, but she does not offer to help me with the work at home.

"Her father says she needs corporal punishment. I hate to resort to the rod, but she ignores my advice and I cannot control her. When I ask her why she comes home late, she says: 'Oh, Ma, don't ask absurd questions.' I have not punished her since she was fourteen, and hate to begin now.

MRS. M. F. N."

There is always some way of reaching a stubborn or unruly child, and it suggests itself to me that Miss N. is lording it over her mother a high-handedly because she doesn't believe mother has either the power or the determination to control her.

"I always give her money for pleasure and clothes," says the mother, adding that there is no gratitude, no consideration shown by the girl, who is managing to get things her own way.

But suppose a girl like this were forced to awaken to the fact that "nothing for nothing" is the rule of life. Suppose mother quietly informed daughter that if she won't work—she can't play.

"Without money, we are all helpless. A girl who has clothes, a good home, plenty to eat, and spending money finds herself in an independent position. But a girl of twenty should be earning her way. If she doesn't want to go out into an office and work, she ought to wash the dishes and get some of the meals.

Cut off from her supplies and forced to earn the things she wants, the unruly girl often awakens to the new sense of responsibility.

Corporal punishment would perhaps fill a girl with resentment. It might so humiliate and embitter a high-strung girl that she would almost hate the one who administered it. But the girl's sense of importance would be broken down if she found that she can't do as she pleases and have what she pleases.

The girl whose parents are afraid to deny her anything for fear they will lose her love, is at a great disadvantage. She needs to be taught that she has no rights in the home once she is grown—unless she earns her way.

All children should be taught that they must make a return in love, kindness, consideration and respect for what is given them. They should, moreover, learn that they have their own lives to make and that they can throw away their chances for happiness if they will not make a sturdy, independent fight for their own growth.

HOW NOT TO CATCH COLD

—By Brice Belden, M. D.—

FROM various authoritative and up-to-date sources the following principles having to do with the prevention of colds have been formulated.

First—Avoid sitting or working in a room the temperature of which is over 68 degrees Fahrenheit. For sitting, a temperature of 65 to 68 is suitable; for working, one of 60 to 65. There should be a slight current of air and a proper degree of humidity.

Second—Don't use sprays unless they have been prescribed by the doctor. If a spray is used which is strong enough to destroy germs it will also injure the mucous membrane. A level teaspoonful of salt to a pint of water may be used for cleansing purposes.

Third—Keep out of the range of persons who cough and sneeze without using handkerchiefs or other protection. Don't cough or sneeze yourself in such a manner.

Fourth—When one of the members of your family has a cold see that he does not come in contact with other members of the household, and that he does not use the same eating or drinking utensils. Sterilise everything that he uses, just as you would in the presence of any contagious disease.

Fifth—When you have a cold keep away from public meetings.

Sixth—When you have a cold don't shake hands with people and don't stand close to them when conversing. In using your handkerchief your hands, of course, become contaminated. When speaking you throw out invisible droplets which carry infection.

Seventh—Don't eat yourself or handle and give food to another unless you have thoroughly cleansed your hands.

I am going to visit friends in a distant town. My best friend is extensively acquainted there, and I should like to ask him for letters of introduction to his friends, for then I will not be lonely. Would this be all right?

ANXIOUS.

ANSWER—Under no circumstances must you ask for letters of introduction. It is considered very bad form. You may hint, in a tactful way, that you may be lonely while on your visit. But you must not request such a letter. The young man will undoubtedly suggest it himself if he cares to give you such letters.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

BE SURE TO READ THEM TO CHILDREN

By Blanche Silver

Doris Meets a Queer Little Woodman

DORIS kept very quiet for fear of frightening the little creature that lay sleeping on a green leaf.

It was hard to tell where leaf and animal began and left off. They were both so very near the same color and shade.

"Oh, dear, I wish—" but before Doris could finish her sentence the very object of her wish popped down beside her.

YOUR FRIEND—WHO IS SHE?

"Squeedee, I was just going to wish for you," she laughed merrily, shaking the little elfin's hand. "You know I was just wondering what our little sleeping friend was."

Squeedee peeked over the slumbering little animal and poked at him with a blade of grass.

"Here, you lazy thing, wake up!" he called merrily. "Don't you see you have visitors?"

Quick as a wink the tiny green creature jumped up and was about to scamper off in the grass when Squeedee stopped him.

"Here, open your eyes and see whom you're running away from," he laughed. "Doris and I are not going to harm you."

The little green fellow turned around at the sound of Squeedee's voice, and seeing who it was, looked embarrassed, turned around, and ran back to the elfin's side.

"Sure enough. So it is my old friend, Squeedee," he laughed merrily. "And your friend here—who is she?"

"Doris from the North," laughed Squeedee. "Mr. Lizard, I want you to meet Doris. I'm sure you'll find her a nice little girl."

Mr. Lizard held out his tiny green foot to shake hands, but Doris put her hand behind her and simply nodded her head. Both Squeedee and Mr. Lizard laughed at the expression on her face.

"I guess you would know you've never lived in Florida," Mr. Lizard laughed, withdrawing his foot, "or you wouldn't be afraid of me. Why, honey, I wouldn't hurt you for the world!"

"Goodness, no!" exclaimed the elfin. "Mr. Lizard is most inoffensive. He has no way of fighting with enemies, so he scoots out of sight before you know it."

"I'll just bet you anything," laughed Mr. Lizard, "there are not many folks who know that, and so they are all afraid of me. Goodness, the lizards around here wouldn't think of doing anything but run when they see a little girl or boy coming their way. Now, where I live, in the trunk of that old tree yonder, I don't often see folks, but somehow I wandered away from home today."

"Just so I could become acquainted with you," said Doris. "I'm mighty glad to know you, Mr. Lizard." Then she caught her breath, for Mr. Lizard, who had been a lovely green the second before, now turned to a dull, dirty brown. "Are you ill?"

"Of course not," he laughed. "Oh, I see! Because I turned color! My goodness! Anyone to hear you talk would know you were a stranger in this neck of the woods. Goodness, no! I'm in perfect health, but I won't be if I don't hurry home." And without another word Mr. Lizard hurried out of sight.

"That's one way they have of protecting themselves," said Squeedee. "They can change color to match the object they are sitting on."

Just then Doris's aunt called her, and Doris bid Squeedee good-bye and went back to the house.

MEDICINE CABINET

—By Loretto C. Lynch—

An Acknowledged Expert in All Matters Appertaining to Household Management.

IN the past week there has come to my notice no less than five cases of needless death because of bad management as to the medicine cabinet. In one case a woman trusted her prescription to a country druggist. He misread the prescription and put in poison. The woman took one dose of the medicine and realized that she was poisoned. But—there was nothing in that home that could be given as an antidote. Mustard in hot water would have induced vomiting, but—there was no mustard in that home and by the time medical aid arrived, she was dead.

In three there was the cases of several children who had been given a dose of a popular diuretic for cough medicine or something else. In each case the baby was too young to tell and death was imminent before medical aid was sought.

It is too bad that in spite of advice we still read of these needless deaths, generally traceable to just plain bad housekeeping. If a poisonous disinfectant must be in the house, do not place it in the medicine cabinet with other medicines.

Lacking a strictly up-to-date medicine chest with a small compartment with separate lock and key for poisons, at least have a small hinged box and put a padlock on it. Then the very fact that you must unlock the padlock will tend to remind even the most absent-minded that the box contains poison.

A box of labels already gummed may be purchased for a nickel. Hand-print in jet-black ink the name of the contents of each and every bottle no matter how evident it is to you what the bottle contains.

WHO SAID IT AND WHERE

"Honi soit qui mal y pense."

"Evil to him who evil thinks," was the motto of the order of the Garter instituted by King [illegible] ward, III.

"It's an ill wind that [illegible] body good."

So Thomas Tusser wrote in the sixteenth century.

"To Knuckle Under."

Observation of the manner in which the knuckles bend at the command of the brain is evidently the basis of this phrase denoting entire submission. It is used frequently by writers of all periods.

ORANGE RECIPES

Housewives are given a great chance to win a crate of luscious oranges from the California orchard of Douglas Fairbanks, the star in the film show, "Robin Hood," or a pair of seats to the same show, by sending in a recipe of some good way to prepare the fruit for the table. Address Orange Editor, Boston, Mass.

Orange Shortcake

Remove all skin from 6 oranges and cut into thick slices. Sprinkle with sugar and keep in a warm place until ready to use. Make a crust of 2 cups flour sifted twice, with 4 teaspoons baking powder and ½ teaspoon salt; cut into this 4 level tablespoons of butter and moisten with water enough to make a soft dough; toss about lightly on floured board, then roll into thin sheet, spread ½ with softened butter, fold the other ½ over it and then cut into rather large biscuits. Place well apart on baking pan and bake in hot oven. Pull the halves apart when done, add bits of butter and put the oranges between halves and on top and serve as individual shortcakes.

21 Gledhill avenue, Everett, Mass. MRS. R. GARDNER.

Orange Pudding for Four

Peel and slice 4 medium-sized oranges. Cover with sugar. Let stand 30 minutes. Into your double boiler put 1 pint of milk, 2 eggs and ½ cup of sugar. Thicken with cornstarch. Cool. Pour over oranges. Add 1 teaspoon of lemon and serve. Delicious!

Orange Pudding

One and a half cups orange juice, ¼ cup lemon juice, sugar, 1 pint heavy cream, ½ cup powdered sugar, ½ tablespoon vanilla, 2-3 cup chopped walnut meats. Mix fruit juices and sweeten to taste. Turn mixture in brick mould. Whip cream, and add sugar, vanilla and nut meats; pour over the first mixture to overflow mould; cover with buttered paper; fit on cover; pack in salt and ice, and let stand 3 hours.

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

I SAW sum men drinking thare afternoon coffy in a palm room down town, sed Ma to Pa, last nite. It seemed so refined, sed Ma.

They call them palm rooms, Bobbie, sed Pa, because the waiters stand around with thare palms out, sed Pa.

Nothing of the sort, Bobbie, sed Ma, a palm room is a room in which palms is the deckorashuns, sed Ma. It seemed cutey nice to see those men sipping thare coffee instead of standing at a vulger bar somwares, sed Ma, drinking Hi-Balls, sed Ma.

It will be a pretty long spell beefour you see me sipping coffy in a palm room, sed Pa. I am going to let the hi-balls alone, sed Pa, but that aint going to meen that I will go to them plak tee rooms, sed Pa.

Never fear, sed Ma. I am not likely for to ask you, sed Ma. That kind of atmosfeer wud be too refined for you, I know, sed Ma.

Can you imagine any of my old gang slopping coffy in a tea room? sed Pa.

I guess they are down ware they wud like to git seven a sip of water, most of them, sed Ma. I guess they doant serve any tea or other refreshe-ments ware yure frends are spending thare leezurely, sed Ma.

Pehaps they are just as happy, sed Pa. Sumtimes I wish I, too, cud have been only a Mexican wen the nashun went dry, sed Pa.

You poor thing, sed Ma. It is too bad that you have to dispents with anything which used to be so neer & deer to yure hart, sed Ma.

I am willing to let the Hi-balls abide, sed Pa, but I will never set in no pink tea room & drink tea or coffy, sed Pa. I am game, sed Pa, but not takin, sed Pa.

I am sure nobody has asked you to take afternoon coffy with yure wife, sed Ma. Other men think nothing of it, sed Ma.

That is what I think of it, too, sed Pa, nothing, sed Pa.

Aroused His Curiosity

"May I show you my samples?" inquired the commercial traveler.

The proprietor of the village store made no objection, and from an insignificant looking bag the traveler produced a surprising quantity of specimen goods.

"Well, said the shopkeeper when the bag was emptied, "there is only one thing I want today."

But came the order book.

"Thank you, Mr. Wilson," remarked the traveler, delighted at opening a new account, "and what is that?"

"Why," was the reply, "I want room for your samples."

Famous Old Recipe for Cough Syrup

Easily and cheaply made at home, but it beats anything at all for quick results.

Thousands of housewives have found how to save two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, by using this well-known old recipe for making cough syrup. It is simple and clean but it has no equal for results. It gives immediate relief, usually stopping an ordinary cough in 24 hours or less.

Get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist, pour it into a pint bottle, and add plain granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. Or, if you prefer, you can use honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, keeps perfectly, and lasts a family a long time.

You will be astonished how quickly it acts, penetrating through every air passage of the throat with healing influence and relaxing the phlegm, soothes and heals the membranes, and gradually and surely the annoying throat tickle and dreadful cough disappears entirely. Nothing better for bronchitis, spasmodic croup, hoarseness or bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway pine extract known the world over for its healing effect on throat troubles.

Avoid disappointment by asking for Pinex, and get for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

FORBES' VIEWS ON FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

It should be possible to preserve prosperity through the whole of 1923.

There is grave danger, however, that good times may be wrecked by unwise action, by disaster-breeding greed on the part of both capital and labor and by unlimited radicalism on the part of the politicians.

Given normally satisfactory crops, we shall have nearly all the elements productive of prosperity, and if we do not have prosperity throughout the whole year it will be because of folly, which we should start right now to guard against.

What are the gravest dangers looming ahead, which all should strive earnestly to avert?

I would catalogue them thus:

First—Unless price advances are rightly checked 1923 will not end soundly and may end disastrously. Various raw materials have already risen rather sharply, and more or less marking up of finished products is in progress. The test will come when consumers are asked to pay these increased prices. If unwarranted price boosting be indulged in, the recovery in having which has been in progress during recent months will unquestionably collapse.

Second—The cost of living having already increased 10 to 15 per cent. from the 1921 low point, and the demand for labor being even now equal to the supply, agitation for higher wages and shorter hours set in within the next few months—the employes of the Standard Oil Company started the ball rolling in the first days of the new year by demanding an advance. Unless labor leaders grasp the far reaching issues at stake, and exercise moderation wage demands and unsettlement may bring about untenable conditions and the premature puncturing of prosperity.

Third—Disquieting radicalism has been coming to the front at Washington and the ranks of the radicals will be greatly swelled in the next Congress. Were the radical politicians, co-operatory bodies, grasping manufacturers and short-sighted labor leaders and others to act on the assumption that business has become so sound, so solid, so robust, so prosperous, that nothing can or could throttle it, throttling would without question ensue, for there need be no shadow of doubt that business is not yet fool proof. Unrestricted radicalism could and would wreck it.

Fourth—If business expands, as generally expected in coming months, the supply of labor is calculated to fall short of the requirements of industry and agriculture. Unless steps are taken to bring about more immigration than has been experienced since the present law took effect, unhealthy developments may be looked for, especially when our farmers try to find sufficient labor to handle their crops.

Fifth—During my recent transcontinental travels I became somewhat apprehensive over the limitless optimism expressed—and being acted upon—in some important directions, particularly in the Industrial Middle West. I got the impression, for example, that many automobile manufacturers were devoting too much attention to plans for record-breaking production of surplus supplies during the Winter months and not quite enough attention to plans to insure the marketing of this abnormal output. I could not but feel that it was too lightly assumed that the overwhelming demand of last Spring would reappear this Spring without the exercise on every possible effort to attract customers to the particular car each manufacturer offers. It will be dangerous for producers of goods to take it for granted that selling campaigns can safely be curtailed or conducted half heartedly.

Sixth—Instead of putting the European uncertainties first in list, I'm purposely putting them last because I believe that if our own business, labor, financial, political and other leaders handle our domestic affairs prudently, events in Europe will not, at the worst, exercise much greater restrictive influence here this year than they have been exercising heretofore. My own unimportant opinion is that, while there may possibly be a crisis in Germany and over Germany before long, the clouds will have cleared up before the second part of the year, when our own business conditions may need such reinforcement.

My view is that we can have and should have business activity all through the year if we all pay our parts with prudence, moderation, common sense and rational courage.

Recklessness and radicalism would surely bring about the relapse which so many fear.

But must we indulge in recklessness and radicalism?

If we don't, then 1923 should end with a business on a better balanced, broader, more prosperous basis than it is today.

Amoskeag Mills Sags 22 Points When Directors Cut Annual Rate in Half

ACTION COMES AS SURPRISE TO MARKET

Amoskeag Mill stock, fairly active, took a sharp sag in Boston Stock Exchange transactions, off over 22 points at 85. United Shoe was most heavily traded in, selling around a point range and at its best up a bit from Saturday's close.

The drop in Amoskeag was a surprise to the market, dictated by the fact that recessions came a point at a time between early sales. It was caused by the action of the directors of the Amoskeag Manufacturing Company in declaring a quarterly dividend of 75 cents, thereby halving the $6 annual rate.

Calumet & Hecla yielded 3 at 290. Point or more losses came in Isle Royale, Mohawk, Mergenthaler, United Fruit, Eastern Massachusetts common and Class B, and Waltham Watch preferred.

Point or more gains were made by Orpheum, Old Colony, Boston & Albany and Hood Rubber.

Eastman Kodak Sets High on New Stock

Oils were most active in an irregular New York market and were weak in early trading, but improved in the afternoon. Eastman Kodak new stock was a fresh high since 1921, up around 4 points. May Stores hit its previous high for the past year.

Motors after early weakness, became stronger generally. Steels improved under leadership of U. S. Steel.

Endicott Johnson reacted fractionally from high of 92¾ on announcement that monthly meeting of directors had been indefinitely postponed, then rallied. As had been pointed out, it was not expected that the auditors would be ready with complete statements of inventories and 1922 earnings for this meeting. There are indications now that there will appear in 1921 by possibly $2,000,000, which would make the year just ended the best in the corporation's history.

Heavy selling of foreign securities, particularly French and Belgian issues, featured irregular dealings in bonds. Issues of 1 to 1½ points were sustained by French 7½s and 8s, Seine 7s and Paris-Lyons-Mediterranean 6s, with fractional recessions took place in Marseilles 6s, Belgian 6s and 7½s, Lyons 6s and Bordeaux 6s.

Money renewed at 4¾ and raised to 5 per cent.

Boston Notes

AMERICAN Oil & Engineering and Industrial Oil & Gas shares have been removed from the Boston Stock Exchange list.

ATLAS TACK expects by Spring to have earnings better than $40,000 monthly, which would be at annual rate of about $5 a share.

NEW RIVER CO. in 1922 paid $6 per share on its 73,670 shares of preferred stock, keeping just abreast of the cumulative demands of $1.50 per share quarterly.

DAVIS-DALY officials are confident courts will find company is mining within its rights.

AMERICAN Hide & Leather re-sumption of dividends on preferred is thought by many to be near. There is about 125 per cent. back dividends accrued on the preferred.

UTAH expects to have mills operat-ing on red metal at capacity shortly. Arthur mill has been treating up to 17,000 tons daily.

IF CARLSBAD & HECLA'S exhaus-tive geological report is a success, it will be possible not only to locate and to identify a vein but to determine just where the copper is in the lode.

COPPER RANGE produced approxi-mately 300,000 pounds more refined copper in December than in the preceding month, due to the increase in the underground force at Champion mine.

WALTHAM WATCH shareholders will have special meeting February 8 to act upon reorganization plan.

FURTHER delay in clearing up the European situation may affect copper sentimentally and delay any possible upturn.

MOHAWK, due to betterment in man-power, produced more copper in December, turning out approximately 900,000 pounds.

WALDORF System, Inc., net earn-ings for the eleven months ended November 30 last, totaled $1,112,514 which after preferred dividends equaled $4.95 a share of common, against $3.70 a share of common in full 1921 year.

UNIT STEAM car, using crude oil for fuel, given trial runs on branches of Boston & Maine Railroad, was built by Laconia Car Company. If car meets expectations of Boston & Maine officials they will be placed on non-paying branches.

FRENCH RAILS OFF IN LONDON MARKET

General tone of the London Stock Market was steady, except in the foreign section, where offerings caused flatness in French and German bonds and weakness in French rails. The amount of stock changing hands, however, was small.

Marks slumped to 4.64 and French francs to 68.36 to the pound sterling.

HUGHES PLAN ON REPARATIONS UP TO FRANCE

Washington, Jan. 8.—The plan for settlement of the reparations controversy between France and England outlined by Secretary Hughes in his New Haven address has been communicated to the French Government through official channels.

No final reply has been made by Paris, although it was learned today a preliminary answer had been received from the French Foreign Office. It was said at the State Department the proposal was regarded as still before the French government for decision.

It was not stated when the American communication was sent, but indications were it was transmitted through diplomatic channels before Mr. Hughes delivered his address at New Haven.

It was said authoritatively the transmittal was "perfectly definite" in character, and it was indicated it revolved about the suggestion that international financiers be called in to formulate a reparations payments plan.

Official comment as to the nature of the reply already received from Paris was withheld. The statement that the American suggestion still was definitely before the French government, however, was interpreted to mean that the French answer was not an unqualified rejection of the scheme.

SALESMEN LOOK FOR GOOD TIMES

Memphis, Tenn., Jan. 8.—Hard work is the cure for hard times, according to the salesmen attending the fifth annual salesmen's convention of the Plough Chemical Company.

Notwithstanding the general feeling of pessimism that prevailed at the beginning of last year and the railroad and coal strikes that the company's sales for 1922 were double those of the previous year. Zeal and enthusiasm, backed up by a line of well-advertised goods, is the reason given for this achievement.

For the coming year, the company is looking forward to a similar accomplishment. The Plough Chemical Company has never before handled its goods in the United States. In less than a decade the company has grown to be one of the largest toilet and medicine manufacturers in the country.

The cruise on which it is now embarked will consume twenty-three days, calling at Havana, Cuba; Ponce Antonio and Kingston, Jamaica, Cristobal, Panama Canal Zone, and Port Limon, Costa Rica. A complement of movie photographers will be accompanied the party to keep a pictoral record of the events.

TRANSPORTATION CORPS OFFICERS MEET TO FORM CLUB

A meeting of former officers of the Transportation Corps, A. E. F., who are located in New England, will be held on Friday, January 19, for the purpose of forming a permanent social organization. Many well known transportation men were officers in this corps, which established a remarkable record under the direction of General Atterbury, now vice-president of the Pennsylvania System. Jonathan Story, traveling passenger agent of the Burlington Route, is a leader in the movement to effect a permanent organization of the New England members, and the preliminary meeting will be held at the Burlington offices at Room 332, Old South Building. It is expected that about one hundred will attend.

RADIO CONCERTS ON OVERLAND LIMITED.

Radio fans who journey to the far West may have an opportunity to indulge in their favorite pastime of listening in on broadcasting as a result of successful experiments made on the Overland Limited, the fast Chicago-San Francisco train of the Chicago & Northwestern-Union Pacific-Southern Pacific route.

A high-power receiving set was installed, consisting of a three-stage radio with a two-stage audio frequency amplifier. Using this normal receiving radius of 2,000 miles under normal conditions. The experiments worked out even better than anticipated and passengers were able to listen to music, speeches, weather reports, news items, stock market quotations and other matter broadcasted by radio stations. En route the train picked up radio programs from stations at San Francisco, Los Angeles, Sacramento, Portland, Seattle, Honolulu, Salt Lake City, Denver, Ogden, Omaha, Kansas City, St. Louis, Chicago, Vancouver and other points.

SHIPS GIVE RADIO CONCERTS

Another evidence of the increasing popularity of radio broadcasting concerts is seen in the action of the Southern Pacific Steamship Lines, in equipping the ships of its weekly service from New York to New Orleans with radio concert reproduction sets, so that radio broadcasting may be heard by passengers when weather conditions permit.

EXTRA CARS TO FLORIDA

Traffic to St. Petersburg on the newly inaugurated thru-car service of the Seaboard Air Line has become so heavy that extra cars have been ordered for several days in January in order to take care of the tourist accommodations.

It was considered at the beginning of the season that the coal shortage would cause a heavy movement to Florida during November and December and that, as a result, January and February traffic would fall off. Advance bookings indicate quite a heavier-than-usual January and February travel, while November and December are the previous records of the local offices.

TRAFFIC CLUB MEETINGS

A number of representatives from the local "off-line agents" offices will attend the meetings of the Springfield and Providence Traffic Clubs. The Springfield meeting will be held this evening at the Bridgway Hotel, and the Providence meeting will be held on Tuesday evening.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Among the out-of-town representatives who attended the annual meeting of the Railroad and Steamship Agents' Association were David H. Hutchinson, general agent of the Big Four at Pittsburgh, formerly representative of this same road in this city; Simon E. Beane, assistant ticket agent of the Portland Steamship Company, and Daniel C. Scott of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company. New York; Parker R. Lewis and Ira F. Hubbard of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad, at New York.

D. L. Myer, assistant freight traffic manager of the Santa Fe, visited the local office of the road in the Old South Building during the past week.

G. M. FILLEBROWN DIES IN BROOKLINE

George M. Fillebrown, veteran of the Civil War and for twenty-six years a member of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company, died at his home, No. 7 Vernon street, Brookline, after an illness of several years. He was born in Mount Vernon, Me., in 1841. He settled in Foxboro, Mass., many years ago and enlisted in the First Massachusetts Cavalry at the outbreak of the Civil War. He was wounded in the Battle of Aldie, the same engagement which resulted in the wounding of Major Henry L. Higginson. They convalesced in the same hospital.

MOVIE WORLD NEWS AND GOSSIP

THOMAS MEIGHAN and twenty other Paramount players and technical men are at Panama, where exterior scenes will be filmed for "The Never-Do-Well," a new Paramount picture to be made from Rex Beach's novel. Scenes will be taken in Panama City, Colon, and at various points along the Canal.

The party included Mr. and Mrs. Meighan, Director Alfred E. Green and Mrs. Green, Lila Lee and her father and mother; Gertrude Astor, Sid Smith, John Milton, Laurence Wheat, Jules Cowles, George O'Brien and Mr. Green's technical staff.

The company will remain in Panama six weeks making exterior scenes and will return to New York to take the interior in the company's Long Island studio.

SIDEBOARDS AGAIN.

DON'T be surprised if you see your favorite leading man sporting a new hirsute adornment. Following the appearing of Bowing with Marion Davies in her new Cosmopolitan picture, "Little Old New York," in which Conway Tearle and Harrison Ford, Mahlon Hamilton, Courtney Foote, Montague Love and other actors who have parts in the picture began growing "sideboards." A century ago these little patches on the cheeks were the correct adornment for the young bloods. Since the young men appearing in "Little Old New York" started to grow this part of their make-up, half of the members of the Lambs Club have followed suit, sheep-like.

ENJOYING A DESERT.

"COMBINE" business with pleasure, when possible, says Rupert Hughes. So when he, accompanied by his assistant, James Flood, Cinematrapher John Mescall, Location Scout Ray Moore, and Walter Cameron, the Goldwyn home-composer, had to go to Palm Springs to find locations for the next Hughes production, "Souls For Sale," they went one day to that rolling Simoon in time to see the desert play. "Souls For Sale" is an adaptation by Mr. Hughes of his novel of that name. Eleanor Boardman, Richard Dix, Frank Mayo and Lew Cody have been engaged for the important roles.

"You CAN Save More"

Saving a LITTLE More Now Means Having a GREAT DEAL More Later—Only Imagination Is Necessary

Copyright, 1923, Star Company

Norman B. Meyer says: "Write a few words under the heading, 'You Can Save More.'" Here are the words:

Archimedes said that if he had a place to stand, a lever and something on which to put it he could move the earth. It would have been necessary to take the longest lever and add A LITTLE MORE.

If you had a crowbar six feet long and added three feet to the length of that crowbar you would add a great deal more than 50 per cent. to its lifting power as a lever. You know that.

If you are saving a little money now, and will save a LITTLE MORE it will add a great deal to what you HAVE, what you ARE and what you will ENJOY a few years from now.

Suppose somebody said: "Here is a little machine that every year, as long as you live, will grind out for you five gold dollars," you would say: "For heaven's sake, GIVE me the little machine RIGHT AWAY. I want to start it working NOW.

Well $100 thus saved up is just that "little machine." Every $100 properly invested will grind out little gold dollars every year as long as you live, and a great deal longer.

The thing for you to do is to put that "little machine" of $100 working NOW.

After you have a few such machines at work, you have a power that wisely invested can be used to produce a hundred times what they would have produced separately.

Twenty little machines, or fifty little machines, of $100 each, invested in the right kind of a bigger machine, NOT FOOLISHLY BUT WISELY INVESTED, may turn out for you every year not 5 per cent., but 100 per cent.

You know that Mr. Couzens, recently Mayor of Detroit, now appointed Senator from the State of Michigan, was taken into Henry Ford's firm because he happened to have just a few of those little $100 "machines," in other words, some saved up money. In the whole world he didn't have $3,000, but he had brains, character, and THE LITTLE MACHINE. He put in his few hundreds of dollars carefully saved. And not so long ago he sold his interest to Ford for thirty-five millions.

He was the kind of man that said to himself, "I CAN save a little more." He did save, and he HAD it, when the time came.

Every other man will say, "I save all I can NOW, I can't save any more." Others will say, "How can I possibly save ANYTHING with the little I have, and with those dependent upon me?"

But that view can be changed by a little imagination. Say to the same man, "I know where a million dollars in gold is buried; it will cost us about $500 to reach the spot. How long will it take you to save your half of the $500?"

If he believed you, he would immediately find a way to save to get the money to take him to that treasure.

There is no buried treasure, but there is hope for all, safety for all, comfort for yourself and the respect of your fellow men in old age, if you will make up your mind that you CAN SAVE A LITTLE MORE, then save it, then KEEP IT, and invest it wisely in something that YOU UNDERSTAND THOROUGHLY, not something that somebody else tells you about.

Work and save nothing and your work is unpleasant, and your life gets more unpleasant as it goes on.

Work hard, save, discipline yourself and thus inevitably raise yourself, rapidly or slowly, according to your ability, and THE WORK IS INTERESTING, because the saving represents work done and the future is not threatening.

Save a little more now; you will enjoy a GREAT DEAL MORE later.

Gov. Brown's Inaugural Address Progressive

The message of Governor Brown of New Hampshire for the forty-eight-hour law rings true to his promises. We hope that a skilful leadership on his part, combined with the intelligence of the farming constituency of New Hampshire, will unite and give New Hampshire what the workingmen of Massachusetts have enjoyed for some years.

It is most encouraging to New England that there are in at least four of our six States Governors who have delivered progressive inaugurals. The Governor of Rhode Island recommends a program of reform in that State which ought to make the struggle which he would lead attractive to all liberal men. The Boston American has a larger circulation in Rhode Island than any Rhode Island paper. We offer the Governor every service we can render him in the promotion of his splendid program. We want him to feel privileged to command our assistance any time he thinks we can render him any service.

Naval Pact With Japan

Copyright, 1923, Star Company

You know about our naval agreement with England and Japan.

Why should this nation agree with Japan to keep down the navy to a size to suit the Japanese purse? The Japanese admiral, Ide, speaking for Kato, the Premier, says Japan is content to have six ships to America's ten; adding that Japan's navy is superior in speed and in dockyards.

What reasons have American statesmen, so called, for cutting our navy to the capacity of the Japanese? And what RIGHT have they thus to limit the use of the resources of the United States? This nation is entitled to such protection as it can afford regardless of what England or Japan are willing to spend.

Fortunately, battleships will amount to little in future wars. Flying machines and submarines will amount to everything. We hope that before long this nation will have an administration that will forget Europe for awhile and concentrate on submarines and flying machines for the United States, until all possibility of attack from the outside shall have disappeared.

SEEN AND HEARD

WHILE REV. C. N. GARLAND, pastor of Grace Methodist Church, Bangor, Me., was preaching in his pulpit on "Peace, Good Will Towards Men," a sneak thief entered his home, stole valuable Canadian gold coins and other articles and left a note with this inscription: "There is no peace to the wicked."

Hazing, the despair of college authorities, was in mediaeval times a recognized academic rite. It sprang from the custom of initiating a "bejanus," which means yellow beak. A bejanus, the name given to a freshman, before he could become a full-fledged student, had to wine and dine the students and teachers. One of the ceremonies of the feast included running the gauntlet, suffering blows from a book or frying pan, while the "beganus" lady friends watched from a balcony.

MISS MABEL COAPMAN, trumpeter for the Girls' Camp at Fairlee, N. H., will be the bass trumpeter in the quartet of trumpets which will open the religious revival scheduled at Tremont Temple for January 8 to 14. MISS COAPMAN is popular with the Summer girls at Fairlee, despite the fact that her trumpet calls them from their beds with the birds every morning.

DR. W. T. BOVIE of the department of biophysics at Harvard has been paid the honor of delivering the fourth Harvard Society lecture at New York Academy of Medicine this year.

Retired Methodist ministers are liable to calls to duty in Boston. REV. A. M. OSGOOD and REV. CHARLES S. NUTTER, both retired, have been drafted to compile a catalogue of the volumes in the New England Historical Library and are busy at their task.

When COMMISSIONER GEORGE T. CHAMBERLAIN of the Shipping Board was in Boston the other day he expressed astonishment at the docking capacity of the Army Base pier in South Boston. Seven big deep-sea passenger steamships were docked on one side of the pier, loading and discharging cargo, while a score of idle vessels were berthed elsewhere about the big wharf.

GARRETT P. SERVISS ON DURATION OF LIGHT

By Garrett P. Serviss

"We are told that light started 1,900 years before the birth of Christ to reach here now from a distant star. Is there no limit to the time and space light can travel without dying out?—Monroe Sunshine."

IT is assumed that the velocity of light in a vacuum is uniform, amounting to about 186,300 miles per second. If it is thus uniform as affirmed by Einstein's theory, and if its velocity, as that theory also asserts, appears everywhere the same, regardless of any motion of either the observer or the source of the light itself, then it cannot "die out" no matter how far, or how long, it may travel. But light traveling in a dense medium has its velocity diminished, and in such a medium it would eventually cease to go on.

It travels slower in air than in a vacuum, and slower in water than in air. But in what we call "open space," like that which is occupied by the celestial bodies, for instance, the space between us and the sun, light seems to encounter no resistance, and so its energy continues unexhausted.

It has been imagined that light may undergo ultimate extinction in space through encountering scattered matter, but recent studies of the most distant celestial objects that existing astronomical means can attain (thousands of trillions of miles away), indicates that there is no such extinction, at least of a general nature. Of course if a definite obstruction lies in its path a particular beam of light will be arrested, for light cannot penetrate matter that has the constitution of an "opaque" body, and even transparent substances like glass or air, finally extinguish light if it cannot "die out" no matter how far, or how long, it may travel. But light traveling in a dense medium has its velocity diminished, and in such a medium it would eventually cease to go on.

8,000 MORE MICROBES UNKNOWN

PARIS, Jan. 8.—Microbes of more than eight thousand diseases remain to be discovered, according to a report to the Pasteur Institute of Paris by a committee of bacteriologists appointed by the Congress of Medical Science.

A conference of this congress was called by the League of Nations and met at the Pasteur Institute to consider the problem of stamping out disease. It was decided that the work of bacteriologists should be largely supported by all civilized nations, a fund being secured for the purpose of research work.

Six diseases are called by the congress the most deadly. They were, in the order of mortality, tuberculosis, typhus, cancer, pellagra, cholera and syphilis. It was stated that preventive serums for all of these diseases except cancer had been discovered, and that medical science has proved itself capable of curing all the diseases.

Diphtheria and tetanus were also set high in the mortality score. But the greatest of diseases, according to Professor H. Roux, who addressed the congress, is ignorance.

"When we have found the germ of ignorance and are able to kill it," said Roux, "we shall kill also the microbes of a thousand diseases that are fatal today."

Tiger Skin For Roosevelt

TOKIO, Jan. 8.—During his visit to Japan Kermit Roosevelt has been presented with a large tiger skin by S. Yamamoto, a shipping magnate, who shot the animal in Korea. Yamamoto was a close friend of the former President Theodore Roosevelt and several years ago attempted to present the same skin to him. Customs officials at San Francisco sent the hide back, however.

Roosevelt is busy sight-seeing in Japan, and he and Mrs. Roosevelt are collecting a great many valuable Japanese curios, including books and prints.

Advice for Will Hays

Editor Boston American:

I am writing this for the possible good it may do in bringing about a wholesome outcome in this newly resurrected fight between lovers of cinema drama and Roscoe Arbuckle. Notoriety has lost its selling value here. The actor apparently knows as little about this new audience in America as he knows of the Bible. He would spend his time more profitably and commendably by hoeing in his neighbor's garden than by wheedling a producer into hiring him and quoting a borrowed Scripture.

Will Hays has listened through courtesy to bad counsel. The quicker he retracts his decision concerning Arbuckle the quicker will the motion picture industry recover from the solar plexus jab he has just inflicted upon it.

Brought Aid to Her

Editor Boston American:

I want to thank you on behalf of Mrs. Henrietta Osborne for the write-up which you gave her recently in the American, which has resulted in bringing to her aid kindly people who are looking after herself and children until the erring husband comes back again.

It is a great thing for these helpless folk to be able to turn to a journal like the Boston American when the social welfare organization fail.

Do Not Inclose Stamps. Letters Will Not Be Answered Personally

ED. NOTE—Several offers of canes have been received in answer to a request published several days ago. Is there any other crippled man or woman who is in need of a cane? The editor is very thankful for the many offers of clothes that came as a result of the appeal a few days ago. There are still many worthy families that need all kinds of apparel.

Sewing Machine

Editor Boston American:

Has anyone a sewing machine that they do not need? I would like one very much, but had so many doctor's bills to pay and my husband has been out of work all Winter, that I cannot afford to buy one.

Needs a Wig

Editor Boston American:

I am a blind woman of seventy, and I am living with a party that gives me good care. I am well in every way, but my head is totally bald, and I catch cold very easily. I have to wear a hat in the house all the time. If some kind person had a wig to give away I would be very pleased to hear from them.

BLIND.

Clothes and Toys

Editor Boston American:

I am a mother with four small children and a husband who is crippled and cannot work, so I cannot buy toys for my children. I saw in your column where Mrs. R. T. G. offers to give toys to children. I would appreciate having some of these very much. I also would like some clothes for boys between the ages of two and seven years and for a girl of eight.

MRS. H. B.

ED. NOTE—Mrs. R. T. G.'s toys have been sent to another family. Has anyone else any toys that would be willing to part with them to some worthy family? The foregoing letter is only one of a great many appeals for toys.

Clothes Wringer

I have a clothes-wringer I will gladly send Mrs. I. F. N.

MRS. M.

ED. NOTE—Mrs. I. F. N. has already been supplied. Is there someone else in need of a wringer who cannot afford to buy one?

High Chair

Editor Boston American:

Will you please try and inform me through your helping hand where some kind-hearted folks would have a high chair for a baby and a crib, large size, for a child three years old. He now has to sleep on a mattress on the floor.

MRS. T. S.

Art Square

Editor Boston American:

I would much appreciate it if any of the kind readers have an art square or large carpet for a front room of medium size to give to a widow who is sick and has one child to care for. If so, I would be very thankful and would be willing to pay express.

The institutions of a country depend in great measure on the nature of its soil and situation.

Girl, Elected as Joke, Accepts

NICKERSON, Kan., Jan. 8.—Miss Clara Arnold, nineteen years old, who declared her election as justice of the peace was a "huge joke," and who at first refused to qualify for that office and also of a recently vacated one of police judge, has capitulated and is now sitting on the bench.

"Club women in a spirit of jest wrote my name on the ballot in the last election," Miss Arnold explained. "I didn't want to be called Judge Arnold."

Her friends declare she is the youngest police judge in the State.

Florida Authorities Diplomatic but Firm on Traffic Rules

By International News Service.

ORLANDO, Fla., Jan. 8.—Now begins the "ticklish season" for municipal judges throughout the length and breadth of Florida. For the next four months these judges will have before them many hundreds of tourists from all sections of the country who will be charged with violating traffic ordinances of the cities of this State. These tourists, more than likely, will be guests of the city in whose court they are ordered to appear. It is the business of the judge hearing these cases to see that his decision makes an impression on the violator and yet sends him out of the court room with a smile on his face.

Winter visitors in Florida who drive automobiles are unfamiliar with local ordinances governing operation of cars. At times it is their lot to be accosted by a traffic officer before they are enlightened on the rules, and as a result it becomes the duty of the police to explain and, if necessary, to administer a fine.

Many of the cities have detailed a guest card, which is given out by the traffic men when automobiles with northern license plates are tagged. One side of the card usually invites the guests to register at the Chamber of Commerce, and furnishes introduction from the municipal judge from both the mayor and the secretary of the motor club. The other is a brief summary of the traffic ordinances signed by the mayor.

The Ears of a Ship

—By Henry Smith Williams—

SOUND travels through the water more than four times as fast as it travels through the air. So the ears of a ship are naturally adjusted below the water line.

Ears of a ship? Certainly. You may call them submarine signal apparatuses if you prefer; but an apparatus designed solely to receive and register the vibrations of sound is certainly entitled to be called an "ear" in every-day speech. And such an apparatus the up-to-date navy carries adjusted at either side of its prow, well down toward the keel. The navigator of a vessel thus equipped is kept informed as to many happenings of which otherwise he would have no knowledge.

In a dense fog, for example, the ears may tell him of the proximity of another ship, thus on occasion enabling him to avoid danger of collision.

The ship's ears are, of course, connected by wires with telephone receivers in the navigator's cabin. Here there will be also, as a matter of course, receivers from a radio apparatus. The two working together may give the navigator information not merely as to the direction, but as to the precise distance of another vessel provided that vessel sends radio signals simultaneously.

A popular form of ship's ear is one invented by Professor Reginald A. Fessenden. It includes a circular disc of metal which is fitted into a hole of just the right size cut in the "skin" of the ship. The steel disc, although about three-quarters of an inch thick, is made to vibrate by the passage of an alternating electric current, and it is therefore called an oscillator. In vibrating it produces a shrill note, and thus signals other ships. Meantime, being connected with vaccum tube amplifiers, it receives and makes audible submarine sounds from miles away.
